

Guerrilla Leader Says Moves in Lebanon Strengthen Leftists' Hand

By ERIC PACE
Special to The New York Times

DAMASCUS, Syria, Jan. 21—Palestine Liberation Army troops are entering Lebanon and this has significantly strengthened the hand of Lebanese leftists and Palestinians in bargaining toward a lasting cease-fire there and toward a settlement enhancing their powers, a Palestinian guerrilla leader said today.

The leader, known as Abu Leila, of the Popular Democratic Front, spoke to reporters here as Syria continued discussions about the Lebanese crisis through various channels, including a meeting here between President Hafez al-Assad of Syria and King Hussein of Jordan.

Well-placed Arab informants said 1,500 Palestinian soldiers had moved from Syria into Lebanon in recent days, establishing firm control over a large area of eastern Lebanon.

Truce Held More Likely
"The P.L.A. units that entered caused perplexity" among the rightist forces, and "have driven them to be more ready for a cease-fire on the basis of a political solution," Abu Leila told visitors to an austere office of his Marxist-Leninist guerrilla group, decorated with a portrait of Lenin.

An influential figure within the Palestine Liberation Organization, the over-all Palestinian organization, Abu Leila said the change in tactical situation in Lebanon had encouraged Lebanese leftists and Palestinians to take a tougher bargaining position than earlier, when they had agreed to cease-fires that were not joined to political conditions.

"The position of the Palestinian resistance and the Lebanese democratic forces," he said, "is that there will be no cease-fire this time unless there is a political solution" in Lebanon along lines proposed earlier this month by Syria.

That proposal, if fully carried out, would enhance the power of Lebanese Muslims at the expense of Lebanese Christians, who are largely right-wingers. The proposals include strengthening the role of Lebanon's prime minister, who is required by law to be a Moslem. They also provide for greater Moslem representation in Parliament.

A slim man of perhaps 35, wearing a jaunty yellow turtle-neck, Abu Leila seemed relaxed, although a revolver lay on a nearby table.

He predicted that "a complete solution in Lebanon, if it is reached will quiet down the situation for the next few years." And he said the greater power that Lebanese leftists would achieve under the Syrian proposals would not necessarily make Lebanon take a more active role on the Arab side in a future Middle East war.

"I don't think even the Syrians want the Lebanese to enter a Middle East war," he said with a grin, adding that Syria would not want to have to defend Lebanon's border as well as its own.

He foresees a solution. Speaking excellent English, Abu Leila voiced confidence that such a solution would be reached and that it would achieve the aims of Palestinians in Lebanon by strengthening the hand of their Lebanese leftist allies, who are mostly Moslems.

"What we want in Lebanon is freedom of action—which means political action in general, the right to organize the Palestinian people in the camps, and the right to use certain parts of Lebanese territory for armed action against Israel," he observed.

As the second-ranking leader of his group, whose full name is the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, Abu Leila has been active in planning guerrilla operations and he asserted that the guerrillas had tried to avoid clashes with Israeli forces along Lebanon's borders.

But when asked whether the expected political changes in Lebanon would strengthen the Arab guerrillas militarily and in other ways in their confrontation with Israel, he smiled and said, "certainly."

The entry, he said, of the P.L.A. into Lebanon was authorized by previous agreements between the Lebanese Government and the Palestinian leadership, and he asserted that the Palestinian force in Lebanon was responsible only to the P.L.O. leaders—although the several thousand Palestinian soldiers normally based in Syria are trained by the Syrian army.

Asked about the Palestinian Liberation Army, Syria's Information Minister, Ahmed Iskander, referred his questioner to the P.L.O. and said without elaborating, "You know that all that is done by the P.L.O. is not necessarily what we want." He neither confirmed nor denied the army's presence in Lebanon.

In an earlier interview with an Arab journalist, he was quoted as having denied its presence.

Though there was still no confirmation here of the army's movements, the well-placed Arab sources said the troops had encountered little resistance.

An Arab source who said he had returned from visiting Palestinian army positions in Lebanon said that in some areas the Lebanese and Palestinian troops were more or less mingled.

"The Lebanese army is on our territory and we are on its territory," he said. Without elaborating, he said that through yesterday the Palestinian contingent had been involved in only minor clashes, although he said word had reached Palestinian officials in Damascus last night of artillery exchanges.

Western and Arab sources here said today that a favorable tactical position had apparently encouraged Syria, which supports the leftists and Palestinians, to press a renewed major diplomatic effort toward a solution of the crisis.

Mr. Iskander, the Information Minister, said tonight Syria has decided to continue exerting its efforts with all of its might in Lebanon in order to avert the catastrophe there.

The Palestinian Army
Special to The New York Times

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Jan. 21—The Palestine Liberation Army, which came into being in its present form 10 years ago, is the military arm of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Yasir Arafat, is the commander of the army, but its day-to-day affairs are under the supervision of the chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Misbah Budeiri, a Syrian-trained Palestinian officer. Conflicts between the military command and the political leadership of the P.L.O. have constantly beset the army.

The army's five brigades have a total strength of 17,000 men equipped with 100 tanks and 2,000 armored cars and tracked vehicles. The Palestinians have no air force, but 1,000 officers have been trained as pilots and aircraft maintenance specialists in Syria, Egypt and Iraq.

Four of the army's five brigades are stationed in Syria and the fifth in Egypt. The largest is the Yarmouk Brigade, which was formed in 1970 after the suppression of the Palestinian guerrillas in Jordan. It initially consisted of some 1,500 Palestinian soldiers who had been serving in the Jordanian Army and defected to the side of the commandos.

The brigade has been built up in the last five years to a force of 5,000 trained in shock-troop tactics. The brigade, organized because of what commando leaders called the Palestinian plight in Jordan, was intended to provide protection for commandos elsewhere in the Arab world.

When the brigade was first formed in Syria, it faced the border with Jordan. It was later transferred to the Lebanese border, where it has been stationed ever since, has repeatedly played a major part in supporting the Palestinian resistance movement in Lebanon. Elements from this brigade were reported to have entered Lebanese territory from Syria during the fighting between guerrilla forces and the Lebanese Army in 1973.

With the bulk of its troops in Syria, the army works closely with the Syrian armed forces, while the brigade in Egypt operates in coordination with that nation's forces.

The Palestinians fought alongside Syrian and Egyptian forces during the war with Israel in October 1973. Some Liberation Army forces were in the spearhead of the Syrian thrust in the Golan Heights during the first days of the war.

Christian Town Burns as Fall in Lebanon

By JAMES M. MARKHAM

Lebanon, Jan. 21 (AP) — A town of Christians, perched on a cliff overlooking the Mediterranean, was reduced to a smoldering ruin today in the 13 stone buildings and windows and with bullet holes pelted over the ground lay the body of a man.

A victorious left-wing leader in Lebanon and said his neck, said his body had been set on fire.

The left-wing leader, who was a member of the National Liberal Front, said he was killed yesterday by a force of Christians.

The leader and his members were both members of the National Liberal Front, a Christian political group.

The leader was killed in a village to the east of Beirut, the capital, where he was leading a fight against the Christians.

fact been in the country for years," the Wafa spokesman said. "They have been in the south and have joined the national forces farther north."

"As for people coming across," he continued, "there are commands coming and going all the time from Syria."

Last night, a Palestinian spokesman said that the "joint forces"—Lebanese Moslems and Palestinians—had moved westward from Chtaura toward Beirut and had taken the little town of Jdita after a "fierce battle."

Earlier, President Franjeh, a Christian, met with the Syrian mediation team led by Syria's Foreign Minister, Abdel Halim Khaddam, the Syrian Army's Chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. Hikmat Chehabi, and Air Vice Marshal Najf Jamil.

The Syrians then adjourned for talks with prominent Lebanese Moslem leaders, including Rashid Karami, who announced his resignation as prime minister on Sunday but has yet to submit a letter of resignation making it formal.

The Syrian Foreign Minister, who also holds the title of Deputy Prime Minister, said that he carried a message from President Hafez al-Assad to President Franjeh and that he had come "with the hope that this time there will be a final settlement to the Lebanese crisis."

Syria, which supplies most of the weapons of the Palestinians and their Lebanese allies, has been seeking a formula that would be acceptable to both Christians and Moslems in Lebanon's civil warfare, which has taken thousands of lives since it erupted last April.

A fundamental issue is a realignment of Lebanon's political structure, which gives the Lebanese Christian minority a dominant role in the Government, Parliament and armed forces.

The Syrians have pressed for equal distribution of seats in the unicameral Parliament, where Christians now have a 6-to-5 majority. Mr. Franjeh was reported to have countered with the suggestion that the parliamentary system be changed to add a senate in which the Christians would preserve their majority, allowing equality of the communities in the lower house.

The Palestinians crossing into Lebanon in the last few days, whatever their number, appeared to be part of Syria's efforts to obtain concessions from Lebanon's Christian leaders, who have resisted Moslem demands for reform.

Arab Meeting Opposed

The Lebanese Government announced that it had turned down a suggestion from Mahmoud Riad, Secretary General of the Arab League, for an urgent Arab conference on the crisis here. A note signed by Foreign Minister Philip Takla said that the Government felt there was no need for a meeting of Arab leaders as long as the Syrian mediation mission was continuing.

In the prevailing state of anarchy and the breakdown of telephone and radio communications, casualty figures cited by the police have almost ceased to have any meaning. But, according to a figure missing the rounds, 200 people have been killed and 400 wounded in the last 48 hours.

Egypt Reports an Accord

CAIRO, Jan. 21—The Middle East News Agency said tonight that the opposing factions in Lebanon had accepted a Syrian peace proposal that included sweeping changes in the Lebanese system of government.

The official Egyptian agency reported that the agreement stipulated that the Palestine Liberation Organization would have to accept secret provisions to deprive Palestinian refugee camps in Christian areas of the country of their weapons.

The agency said the Syrian plan provided for Christians and Moslems to have equal representation in Parliament and for abolition of religious quotas in appointments of all but the highest government officials.

The Syrian plan also calls for the Prime Minister to be elected by Parliament instead Palestinians and Lebanese Moslem allies reportedly besieged Zghorta in north, entered Chtaura in center, attacked nearby Zahle and seized position in Saïda. In Beirut, fighting continued along "confrontation line."

Israel Said to Strengthen Its Forces Facing Lebanon

By DREW MIDDLETON. The Israeli military was reported yesterday to be taking precautionary measures to strengthen northern frontier areas against possible forays from Lebanon by Palestine Liberation Army forces. United States and Israeli sources said that the Israeli action was prompted by the strong probability that the forces that had moved from Syria into Lebanon in the last three days included troops of As Saigra, the Syrian-trained and Syrian-led Palestinian force. Israeli intelligence regards As Saigra as the best armed, organized and trained Palestinian force and considers it capable of conducting conventional military operations. "After 1973, when they were surprised, the Israelis are going to be sure they're not caught napping again," an American analyst said.

What do you say we patch things up and start all over?

After all, it's a new year (and it's going to be a great one). Time to take a new look at everything, from the way you see the world to the way the world sees you.

Let's start by deciding to feel free. Let's resolve to laugh right out loud when it's really funny, and not to be too shy to cry when something's sad.

It's the natural way to be, you see. Natural hair styles, natural makeup and most of all, natural clothes that are young and fun and (there's that word again) free.

We think these breezy bits by a new, young company called Nuage Ltd. are just the ticket. The fabric's light and natural: pure cotton gauze, black as midnight skies before anyone thought of neon lights. The electricity here comes from plenty of patchwork in a blaze of colors from south of el border. Nothing's rigid, naturally. It all flows as it goes, soft and easy.

Of course, far be it from us to tell you, free one that you are, where you should wear these Nuage numbers. But won't they shine whenever you find sunshine, anywhere south of the Arctic Circle.

Eban May Soon Be Rejoining the Israeli Cabinet

By TERENCE SMITH
Special to The New York Times

JERUSALEM, Jan. 21—Abba Eban, Israel's former foreign minister, may soon be joining the Government as a deputy prime minister or minister without portfolio.

The appointment is not yet definite, but Yitzhak Rabin is described by aides as interested in bringing Mr. Eban into the Cabinet to gain support from the dovish elements in his Labor Party. The doves have been sharply critical lately of Mr. Rabin and his policies, especially on the issue of negotiations with the Palestinians.

According to sources close to Mr. Rabin, the Prime Minister met with Mr. Eban for a long private talk in Jerusalem the week before last. They discussed policy rather than portfolios, the sources said, and agreed to meet again next month after both men return from trips to the United States. Mr. Eban is in the United States now on a speaking trip and Mr. Rabin is scheduled to leave next week for a 10-day official visit.

In addition to improving relations within his own party, Mr. Rabin is said to be eager to find a way to put Mr. Eban's experience and skills to work. Long one of Israel's most effective spokesmen abroad, Mr. Eban is now a member of the Israeli Parliament.

The major obstacle to the appointment is the choice of portfolio. Yigal Alon is serving as Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister in the Rabin Government and is said to be unwilling to give up either post. Mr. Eban, on the other hand, having served 14 years as a Cabinet minister, including eight as foreign minister, is unwilling to take a lesser position. Both men have quick tempers and substantial egos, and Mr. Rabin will have to find a compromise solution.

One possibility, according to a source close to the Prime Minister, would be to name Mr. Eban as a second deputy prime minister and minister of information—a portfolio that has been left vacant since the resignation last year of Aharon Yariv. Another option is to bring Mr. Eban into the Cabinet as a minister without portfolio with special responsibility for explaining Israel's policies abroad.

Soviet Reported to Let 5 Study for Rabbinate Here

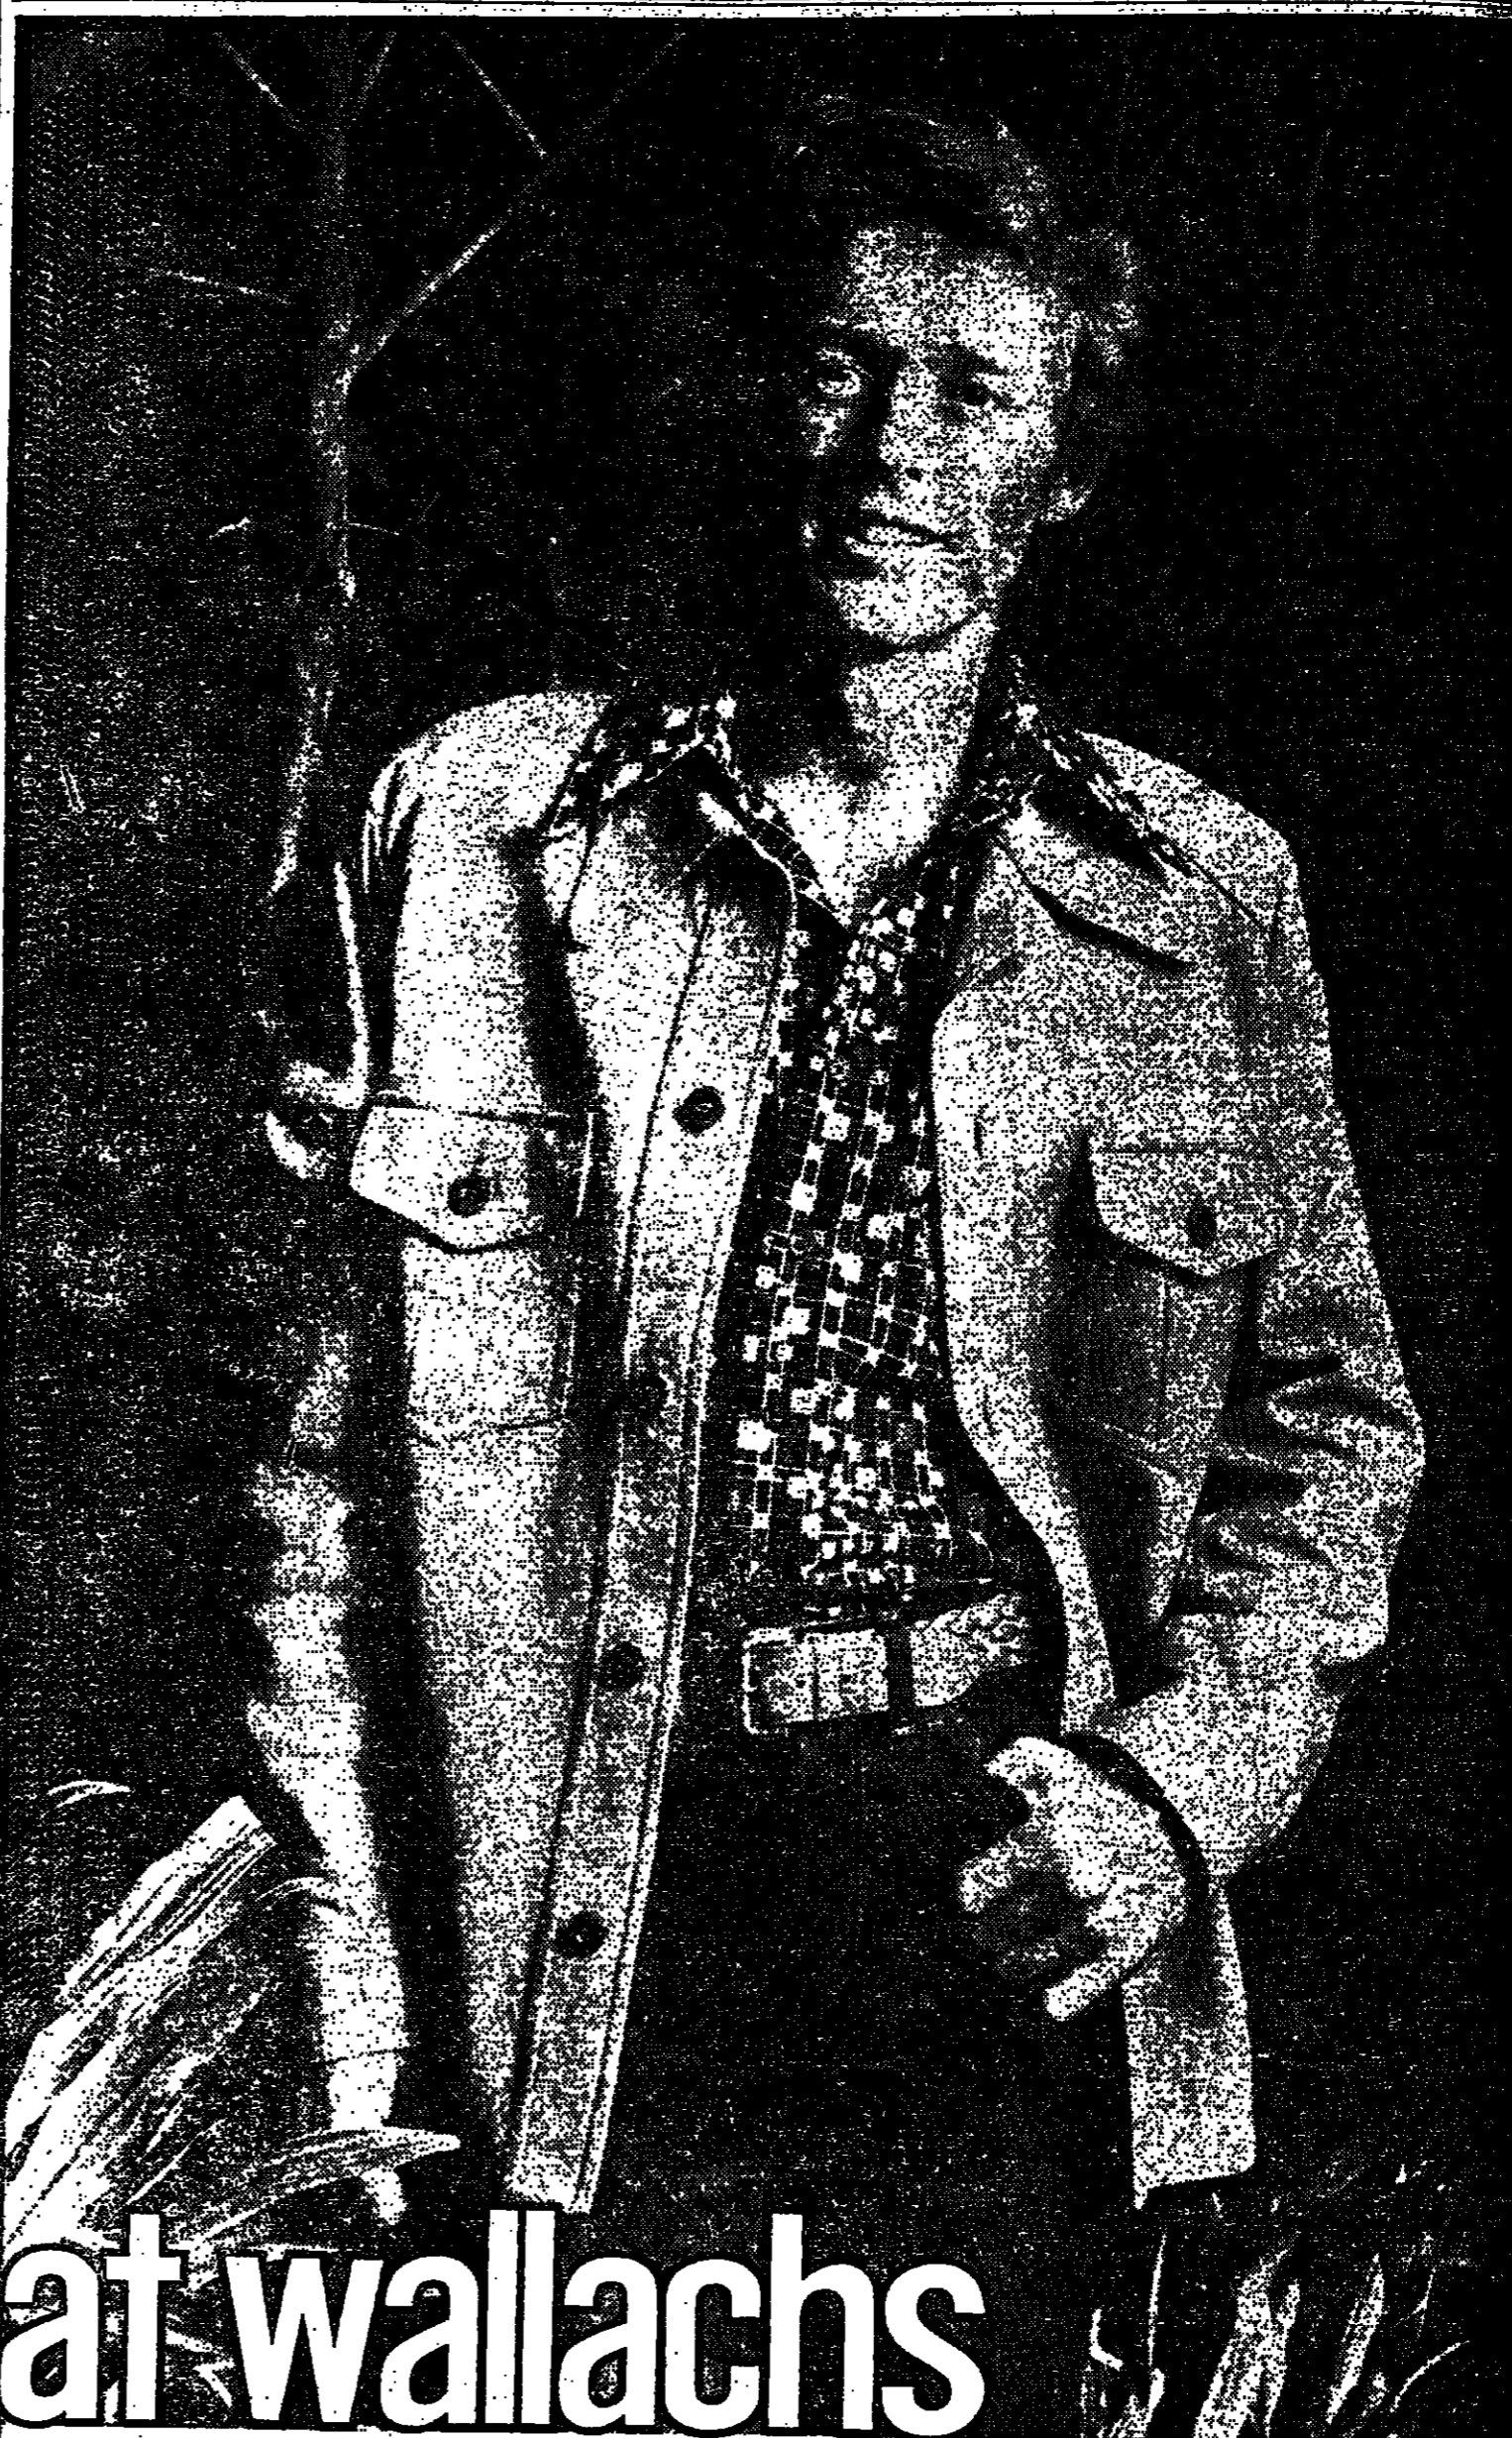

By EDWARD B. FISKE
 The leader of an interfaith foundation reported yesterday that the Soviet Union had agreed to allow five Soviet Jews to study for the rabbinate at Yeshiva University here.
 Rabbi Arthur Schneier, president of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, said that the students—the first Soviet Jews permitted to study for the rabbinate in a Western country—would begin arriving in the fall.
 Rabbi Schneier said that the agreement was negotiated by himself and the Rev. Donald Campton, an American Jesuit who resides in Rome, during a visit to the Soviet Union earlier this month. The talks were held with Viktor Titov, deputy chairman of the Council for Religious Affairs of the Soviet Council of Ministers.
 Under the agreement the Soviet Union will arrange transportation to New York, but the costs of tuition, fees and living expenses, estimated to be at least $10,000 a year for each student, will be borne by the foundation.

 Rabbi Schneier, who is spiritual leader of the Park East Synagogue in Manhattan, attributed the agreement to "vastly improved" relations between the United States and the Soviet Union in recent years. "There is no question in my mind that but for détente this could not have been achieved," he said.
 He also said that it was his impression that Soviet leaders were becoming more sensitive to Western public opinion in the area of religious freedom and that they were "under some obligation to live up to the spirit of Helsinki."
 This was a reference to the East-West agreement reached in Helsinki, Finland, last year. Among other things, it specified protection of basic human rights such as religious freedom.
 Sources in Moscow also speculated that the move could be part of a Soviet effort to defuse the "Jewish issue" in the West by showing that the Soviet Government encourages "legitimate" Judaism, as distinguished from Zionism.

 Religious Rights Protected
 The Appeal of Conscience Foundation is a nonprofit educational organization devoted to promoting the rights of religious minorities. It is supported by private donations and has an annual budget of $200,000.
 Among other things, the foundation has promoted exchange visits of Western and Soviet clergymen and negotiated publication of a Jewish prayer book in the Soviet Union in 1968. It has also been active in Eastern Europe, Spain and Ireland.
 Rabbi Schneier said that a major concern of the organization had been the "critical shortage" of rabbis in the Soviet Union. He said that there are only two in western sections of the country and three to serve Sephardic Jews in the eastern areas. There are approximately 3.5 million Jews in the Soviet Union.

 Nearly two years ago the Soviet Government entered into an agreement with the foundation under which up to 10 men would be allowed to go to Hungary to study for the rabbinate. Rabbi Schneier said that four students had now begun these studies in Budapest with foundation subsidies.
 Ford Suspect Pleads Guilty
 LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21 (AP)—Gary Steven Desure, who was once sent to a mental hospital for allegedly threatening President Nixon, has pleaded guilty to threatening to kill President Ford. Mr. Desure, 33 years old, an escapee from the mental hospital at Warrenton, Ore., entered the guilty plea in United States District Court yesterday. He was earlier ruled mentally competent to stand trial.

POLICE IN LISBON BATTLE STRIKERS

One Man Killed, Six Hurt in Clash in Main Square — Tensions Increasing

By MARVINE HOWE

LISBON, Jan. 21—A two-hour strike by shopworkers today ended in an exchange of gunfire between the police and a crowd in downtown Lisbon that left one dead and six wounded.

The shooting in Rossio Square occurred when a riot erupted as pickets tried to force a shop to close.

The violence was symptomatic of the growing social tension and the new determination of the authorities to enforce order.

The crackdown on demonstrations began after the unsuccessful leftist coup attempt of last November. On New Year's Day, National Republican guardsmen fired into a crowd of demonstrators outside a prison in Oporto, killing four.

Wage Freeze Protested

Lisbon's shopworkers called today's strike to protest the wage freeze. Construction workers have staged similar walkouts.

The strike was only partly allowed, perhaps because of a letter from the Labor Ministry today declaring that it was reviewing wage policy but there would be no new collective wage negotiations until March.

There was a larger than usual crowd in Rossio Square because other unions had called a demonstration to demand a 10-hour workweek.

The Governor of Lisbon issued a statement saying that the demonstration had not been planned according to regulations, but would be allowed to proceed as long as order was maintained.

Shopowners Threatened

The trouble began shortly after 4 P.M., when pickets threatened shopowners who had stayed open. A crowd gathered and there were insults and blows.

Police fired into the air to disperse the crowd and were called "assassins." There were more blows and firing, with some shots coming from people

Southern Angola Is Found in Disarray Under Uncertain Military and Political Authority

Luanda forces, much of the field-level leadership, most of the heavy weapons and the logistical and communications structure are believed to be supplied by South Africa.

South African troops are believed to be manning positions all along the front, which cuts across this huge country roughly along the 11th parallel, from north of Nove Redondo on the coast to about 10 miles south of Teixeira de Sousa on the border with Zaire.

The extent of the South African involvement is not acknowledged by Mr. Savimbi. But National Union leaders interviewed during a five-day visit said they were receiving the assistance of "foreign technicians."

"There are no Angolans to handle complicated equipment, so we must have whites," Miguel Nzau Puna, the chief of staff and secretary general of the National Union, said in an interview at his farm headquarters outside Huambo. "But not all the blonds you see are South Africans."

3 Americans Helping Out

Mr. Puna, who is the movement's second-ranking leader, said foreigners were needed to operate heavy weapons, drive armored cars, fly helicopters and operate communications equipment.

Mr. Savimbi told a group of journalists who visited him this month that there were three Americans working in Silva Porto. He did not specify their functions, nor whether they were mercenaries or agents of the Central Intelligence Agency.

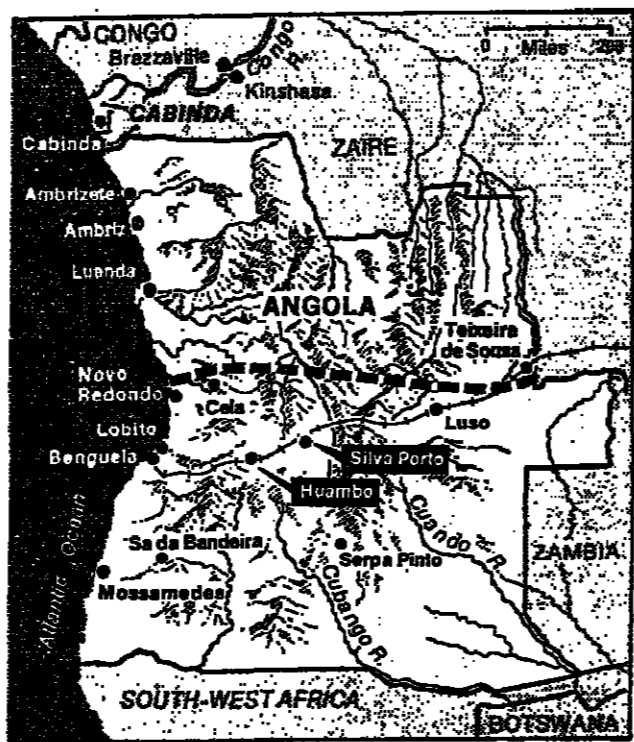

Because of the National Union's embarrassment over its dependence on a country whose racial policies it despises, its leaders group South Africa's assistance together with that of mercenaries, mainly Portuguese. But conversations here and in the port town of Benguela disclosed an organized South

A 25-year old man, identified as Joao Antonio Teixeira Lomba, was shot in the chest and died, according to a spokesman at the Sao Jose Hospital. A policeman in civilian clothes was shot in the stomach and is in a critical condition, according to police sources. At least five others were badly wounded.

A 25-year old man, identified as Joao Antonio Teixeira Lomba, was shot in the chest and died, according to a spokesman at the Sao Jose Hospital. A policeman in civilian clothes was shot in the stomach and is in a critical condition, according to police sources. At least five others were badly wounded.

Western-backed Angolans based at Huambo and Silva Porto are fighting along front indicated by broken line.

African presence all along the front. Residents in Benguela said South African convoys carrying armor, weapons and troops were driving through the town every night along the coastal highway. In the town itself, they said, South African officers occasionally come to dine with National Union commanders.

The Benguela observers said it was mainly South African troops and armor that drove the Popular Movement forces out of the town in November. The South Africans that have been seen wore khaki uniforms without insignia.

A Land-Rover painted in the camouflage colors of the South African army was parked near Benguela airport today.

Treated by South Africans

One of the few Portuguese settlers remaining in Lobito was examined for diagnosis to a South African medical unit serving at Cela, on the Huambo-Luanda highway. Cela is reported under heavy pressure from Cuban and Popular Front forces.

In an interview at the airport here on Sunday, Mr. Savimbi declared that he would not allow journalists to visit Silva Porto. No journalists have been permitted to go to frontline areas, presumably to keep them from seeing South Africans.

News photographers who have taken pictures of South African convoys passing through Huambo and others suspected of having done so had their films seized at gunpoint last week.

Mr. Savimbi and Mr. Puna, in separate conversations, described the situation as relatively stable because most of the pressure of the Luanda forces is deployed against the National Front in the north.

A Disputed Airlift Plan

Mr. Savimbi said 5,000 of his troops were to be airlifted to the north to fight alongside the National Front. He said he would discuss this cooperation with Mr. Roberto and President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire.

"Mobutu will never accept that F.N.L.A. be completely beaten," said the guerrilla leader, who was bearded and wore fatigues, a beret, earrings and two bead bracelets.

Mr. Savimbi did not say who would supply the aircraft for such the airlift, but he mentioned C-130 planes, which the Zairean air force uses as troop carriers.

Mr. Puna, the chief of staff, said the next day that he had not yet discussed this troop transfer, which would involve a quarter of the forces Mr. Savimbi said were under arms. This suggested that the announcement had perhaps been made for political effect.

Mr. Savimbi also said his troops in the north would be placed under National Front command. Mr. Savimbi and others have acknowledged that the two nominally allied factions have often clashed in the south.

National Front Assailed

"We are fighting alone," Mr. Puna said of the action in the south. "All the F.L.N.A. troops stay in town."

The commander said the National Front had promised to send troops to the Cela sector but had not done so.

"They are completely demoralized," Mr. Puna said. "We are completely disappointed with them."

He disclosed that last month a separate National Front force under the command of Daniel Chipenda, the Popular Movement leader until 1974, had attacked National Union troops in Serpa Pinto, Lobito, Benguela, Sa da Bandeira and Moçimboa, driving them from some of these towns.

By Jan. 10, the chief of staff said, the Chipenda force had been driven out of southern Angola. Hundreds are reported to be heading for South Africa by land and sea.

Mr. Puna, as well as Mr. Savimbi, accused the Chipenda force of being allied with remnants of the former Portuguese secret police and colonial army operating from South Africa with the aim of establishing a white supremacy separatist state in southernmost Angola.

The chief of staff said his troops had advanced to within less than 10 miles from Teixeira de Sousa. If they succeed in capturing this railroad and clearing the rest of the rail line as far as Luso, the Benguela Railway would be open again for all its length. It is the principal outlet for copper from Zaire and Zambia.

No U.S. Weapons Seen

While the National Union girded itself for a possible attack after the apparent collapse of the National Front in the north, Mr. Savimbi and Mr. Puna reiterated their request for American arms assistance.

"The Russians are shouldering their responsibility to the socialist bloc," Mr. Savimbi said. "The Americans should not abdicate theirs."

No American equipment was seen during this reporter's stay. It is believed, in the absence of solid information, that most American assistance has gone to the National Front in the north.

After having shown the visitors captured arms of Soviet and Yugoslav origin and indicating his distress over the South African role, Mr. Puna said:

"We think the United States Government must help us establish a balance so that we can think of a political compromise."

Mr. Savimbi, as well as Mr. Puna, said the National Union

Referring to Agostinho the leader of the Luanda Mr. Savimbi said: "I 60 and think: the son President Let him be in I am 40 and can work."

Mr. Puna said he reg that the Popular Fr gained acceptance, and should remain there. He called for pouses in which the Union would be ackn as the most popular Southern Angola.

The revolutionary government had distributed 100,000 tons of rice to help and resettle more people to alleviate the economic situation. The government had gradually restored the financial situation and eliminated the inflation and social violence to our people by the end of the year, he added. Van Tra said that Saigon had a shortage of fuel and electricity for its industries, and he would make the use of raw materials more difficult and increase production. He said that hundreds of thousands of people had already prepared themselves for registration. The government's policy of economic reform, nearly all of which are now in remission, he said, is striving to free itself from the economic crisis to become honest.

Colson Tells of Nixon Praise for Connally and Haig

By PETER KRASS
Former President Richard M. Nixon's special counsel, Charles W. Colson, says that Mr. Nixon once told him that Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally and Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. were "the only two men around here qualified" to succeed him as President—in part because they supported the mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

Mr. Colson has written a 346-page book, "Born Again," describing his religious conversion after he left the White House in 1973. It is to be formally published March 1 by Chosen Books and distributed by Fleming H. Revell, of Old Tappan, N. J., but will be available in bookstores in middle or late February.

Mr. Colson says that President Nixon, in a December 1973 conversation attributed to the White House tape recordings that were the final evidence in his eventual downfall to his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, and bitterly remarked: "The tapes, they were all Haldeman's idea—stupid, just stupid. I told Bob twice to have the system removed, but you know Bob. I forgot all about them. But there aren't any here now. I ordered every one removed. I saw to it myself. You can be sure of that."

Special Counsel
Mr. Colson was viewed by many as the White House "hatchet man" and he recalls how an anonymous Senate aide was the source of the description that haunted him: "Colson would walk over his own grandmother if he had to." He served as special counsel from 1969 to 1973. He pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing justice in connection with the trial of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, who was accused of leaking the Pentagon papers, and was fined $5,000 and served nearly seven months in prison before his release about a year ago.

President Nixon's views on the man around him, according to Mr. Colson, were offered when he ordered the mining of Haiphong harbor and all-out bombing of North Vietnam to counter the spring, 1972, North Vietnamese offensive.

General Haig was then deputy to Henry Kissinger in the National Security Council.

Then wistfully he added, "You know, Chuck, those are the only two men around here qualified to fill this job when I step down."
An editor's note says that Mr. Colson wrote President Nixon May 1, 1973, the day after Mr. Haldeman resigned as chief of staff, successfully recommending General Haig as replacement. Mr. Colson was also said to have "negotiated" the switch of Mr. Connally, former Democratic Governor of Texas, to the Republican party.

OPPOSITION'S LEADER STRIKING TEACHERS IS INDICTED IN SEOUL ACCEPT MONEY PLAN

SEOUL, South Korea, Jan. 21 (AP)—Kim Young Sam, leader of the opposition New Democratic Party, has been indicted on charges of violating President Park Chung Hee's emergency decree of last May 13, the party announced today. The decree bans any acts critical of the Government and of the decree itself.

Mr. Kim, 48 years old, had been under investigation without being arrested in connection with remarks he made at a news conference last August 23 urging the President to lift the repressive decree and restore democracy.

Mr. Park issued the decree after the fall of Indochina, declaring it was essential to insure national unity in the face of grave threats from North Korea.

A New Democratic spokesman, in a statement today, urged the Government to withdraw the indictment, which he called an unprecedented act of suppression against opposition activities.

Mr. Kim remained free today despite the indictment, which prosecution sources said was filed Monday. The formal accusation followed a renewed call by Mr. Kim for lifting of the decree and restoration of a true democracy at a news conference last Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21 (AP)—Striking public school teachers formally agreed today to the general terms of a $10 million salary proposal already accepted by the school board, but said the agreement did not mean an immediate end to their seven-week-old walkout.

Albert Fondy, president of the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, said that the union had submitted a "written and detailed economic proposal that falls fully within the scope" of the $10 million proposal formulated by a special commission appointed by Judge Donald E. Ziegler of the Allegheny County Court and approved by the school board yesterday.

Another union spokesman said: "Agreement on actual salary provisions has not occurred. Salary provisions, along with other major items, still separate the parties. There is no indication that any agreement is even close."

Teachers currently earn $8,700 to $16,700 yearly. No agreement has been reached on how the $10 million would be distributed in terms of raises, according to spokesmen for both sides. Other unresolved key issues include class size, job security, reading programs and discipline.

orts have not been pushing terrorism. of dissent among Yugoslav ties feel that there other major enemy categories — separatists, foreigners who went to inter- fere, and local deviants from the party line.

In dealing with these and other enemies, including persons arrested for offenses committed during World War II against the Communist-led partisans, Yugoslavia may well have filled its jails with more political prisoners than any other country in eastern Europe, except the Soviet Union, which is estimated to be holding 10,000 political prisoners.

The number held in Yugoslavia is not publicly known, but the author said last year that 200 political prisoners had been added. One senior Communist official estimated that, since 1965, Yugoslav jails have held 8,000 political prisoners.

The separatists, particularly those pressing for an independent, non-Communist Croatia, are still regarded as the most numerous and troublesome group.

Yugoslavia is an amalgam of Balkan nations that were joined together in 1918 to form a new country. Since then, Serbs and Croats have often been at odds, and the harmony between them and the other main ethnic groups—Montenegrins, Albanians, Macedonians and Slovenes—has been spotty, at best.

Among the political prisoners seized last year were 103 separatists from Croatia, 33 from Kosovo, which is a predominantly Albanian province, and seven from Slovenia.

The Communist issue

Another major group of prisoners are the so-called Cominformists, Communists advocat- ing a return of Yugoslavia to the Soviet bloc, from which it was expelled in 1948. They are named for the Cominform, a Soviet led association of Communist parties that existed at the time.

President Tito and his aides have worried about the Cominformists for two reasons.

The first is that they have links with the Soviet security service, and in some future crisis could presumably appeal for Soviet help against what have been called "the Titoist renegades."

Pro-Moscow Czecho- slovak Communists asked for Soviet intervention against the liberal party leader, Aleks- ander Dubcek, in just such a development in 1968.

The second reason is the loathing of President Tito and his colleagues for any kind of dissent among Yugoslav Communists.

The Government was appalled on learning that pro-Soviet

Yugoslav Communists held a clandestine party congress of their own in the Montenegrin town of Bar in April 1974. In September, 32 of those who participated in the secret con- gress were sentenced to terms up to nine years. The police have also rounded up six Com- informists in Belgrade, includ- ing Dusan Brlek, a deputy prime minister until he was purged in 1950; seven in Bos- nia-Herzegovina and nine in Vojvodina.

Vladimir Dapcevic, said to have been elected secretary gen- eral of the illegal party by its congress in Bar, is now in jail. An emigre, he disap- peared last August on a visit from Belgium to Rumania, and was later revealed to have been seized by Yugoslav agents with the collusion of the Rumanians.

Yugoslav-Soviet relations have been strained because of the Cominformist case, but a recent article in Pravda de- nouncing dissidents in Yugosla- via as "adventurists" seems to have put things partly right.

In any case, Yugoslav party leaders contend that there are also other enemy forces that should not be ignored.

Among them is organized religion, notably the Serbian Orthodox Church, the Roman Catholic Church and Yugosla- via's Moslem community.

Legal and police pressures against churches have mounted during the year, and new laws limiting church activity are ex- pected to come into force.

When trials of political pris- oners are held, they are pro- forms, and conviction is vir- tually automatic. Sentences last year ranged from a few years in prison for an injudicious remark in a tavern to death for a man convicted of planting three bombs.

Milovan Djilas, a former se- nior Yugoslav Communist who is now the regime's best known critic, has said that "no politi- cal defendant in Yugoslavia is ever acquitted."

Police handling of political cases has been fairly restrained at various times. The longest such period, from 1966 to 1972, is officially referred to as "the anarcho-liberalist period," and it was terminated by a stern set of party directives known as "The Letter," issued by Mar- shal Tito in 1972.

Within the past year, liberal thought in the universities of Belgrade, Zagreb and Ljubljana has been suppressed. Eight professors at Belgrade Univer- sity were ousted, thus removing a liberal Marxist humanist school of thought from that institution.

The only legal Yugoslav pub- lication that had been permit- ted a certain degree of political criticism, the magazine Praxis, was forced to close. Many books and other publications were banned, and some issues of the Catholic magazine Glas Koncila were confiscated.

Academic symposiums have been raided by the police, writ- ers have been officially warn- ed or jailed, apartments have been ransacked for lib- erty manuscripts.

"Tito is right to worry that the Russians and Americans will have a tug of war over Yugoslavia when he dies," one scholar said, "the country does have many unique problems. But no problems are worth solving by police-state meth- ods, and we seem to be drift- ing back to that."

Saint Laurie, a fine men's clothing manufacturer for the past 62 years is trying something brand new. New for them. New for the industry.

Saint Laurie sells their fabulously tailored suits to some of the most expensive stores in the country.

Since August 1st, they continue to sell to stores in New York, but not under their label, and offer their vast collection... direct to the consumer.

Over the years, through personal recommendations, a few were permitted to buy direct in the factory, at prices ranging from $115. to $162.

Those who came up were used to wearing expensive clothes, had a knowledgeable eye for exquisite tailoring, and appreciated the enormous savings offered by buying direct.

This is how Saint Laurie's decision to sell direct in New York came about.

If it makes you feel good, you can still pay up to $275 for a Saint Laurie classic American, or European cut suit in some other city.

However, if you're in New York, you'll feel even better doing business with Saint Laurie... direct.

Device That 'Sees' Into Arteries Offers Clues to Heart Att

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 21 (AP)—A new way of "seeing" inside human arteries has been developed that could help doctors determine whether changes in lifestyle can prevent premature heart attacks, according to a specialist.

The development apparently provides the first evidence, in humans, that the process that causes heart attacks can be stopped and reversed.

And it seems to offer a way of proving whether changing diet, exercise routine, smoking or other habits actually helps prevent heart attacks or brain strokes.

It may also provide a check on whether medical treatments are effective in warding off further heart attacks or strokes after a person has been stricken once.

The advance is in heart research and the conclusions were announced today by Dr. David H. Blankenhorn, a heart specialist of the university of Southern California, who was scheduled to outline his research to an American Heart Association science writers forum.

The underlying cause of heart attacks and brain strokes is atherosclerosis, the clogging of vital arteries with fatty deposits, including cholesterol, so that nourishing blood cannot reach heart muscle tissue or brain cells.

Experiments in animals including monkeys, indicate that atherosclerosis is reversible—that under certain circumstances, the fatty deposits or plaques actually become smaller, Dr. Blankenhorn said.

Experimental animals can be killed to see what has happened to their arteries with a change in diet or from drugs or other factors.

Vascular Image Processing

Now, Dr. Blankenhorn said, the University of Southern California's Specialized Center of Research in Atherosclerosis has developed a system of "seeing" inside arteries, called vascular image processing, to measure whether the fatty deposits "are becoming larger, remaining stationary or becoming smaller in men."

Methods now in use measure changes or interruptions in blood flow from the artery clogging, without measuring the size of the plaques, the physician said. The new system could lead to treatments that correct the trouble before harm is done to the heart, brain or kidneys, he said.

The system was developed in cooperation with the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory from a computerized digital image-processing system used by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to clarify pictures of the moon sent by Ranger and Surveyor spacecraft.

The same technique was applied to X-ray images of human arteries beginning in 1971.

"We now have studied more than 100 men and have learned that for some of them, a one-year program of weight loss and exercise reduced vessel "crustation" of plaques, Dr. Blankenhorn said.

In one group, aged 40 to 49, who had had heart attacks, the X-ray imaging showed that plaques in the femoral artery of the leg had grown smaller in nine men, progressed in 14 and showed no change in 17 others.

In a smaller group, whose coronary arteries were inspected, seven showed growth in the plaque size, seven showed no change and one a regression of the plaque.

The clogging, or plaques, were made visible by injecting dyes that show up under X-rays.

Dr. Blankenhorn said he was not yet prepared to say what caused the plaques to show change to a low-cholesterol diet, exercise and weight loss.

In some of the lesions, the only change shown through the imaging system.

"We have done the lesions," he said. "We just don't know what caused the change in size of the plaque," he said, adding that he is likely to show a change in plaque if they do diet, exercise and weight loss.

In the men's clothing world, the word "outlet" often suggests the most meager, humble kind of "pipe rack" operation located way out of the way upstairs in some old loft building or other. The kind of image, frankly, that keeps a lot of customers away. Unfortunately for us, some people see our name and think that's what we're in too. So, I'm here to tell you, we're not!

All of our National Brands Outlet stores are located in very nice neighborhoods, are right at street level and are beautifully and tastefully appointed. With the exception of our newest Third Avenue store, with its magnificent Italian marble floors, our stores are fully carpeted. All have stereo music in the background, individual dressing rooms, experienced sales-people to assist you and exceptional alteration facilities. And, of course, aisles filled with thousands-upon-thousands of famous-label men's wear for you to browse through at your leisure.

Other than the Market Profiles Inc. research report statement saying "National Brands Outlet is selling nationally advertised branded men's clothes from 40% to 70% less than identical clothing currently selling at other major stores"... you wouldn't even know you're in an "outlet" store!

Research Finds Peril to Lungs In Heavy Marijuana Smoking

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UPI)—A study by a California medical team raises the possibility that heavy marijuana smoking can harm the lungs. Dr. Donald P. Tashkin and co-workers at the School of Medicine of the University of California, Los Angeles, found in a study of 28 healthy young male marijuana smokers that "customary social use" of marijuana did not produce a noticeable respiratory effect—but that heavy smoking did.

Before beginning the test, the subjects reported smoking marijuana at least four times a week. Their lung function was normal when the study began.

After two and a half months of smoking an average of five cigarettes a day, the study found, the subjects showed small, but significant, changes in lung function. The speed at which they could exhale diminished, the ability of oxygen and other gases to pass into the blood stream was decreased, and their airways narrowed slightly. Their lungs improved one month after the test ended.

Dr. Tashkin reported the results of the studies in last week's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine and said the data suggested the degree of respiratory impairment was related to the amount of inhaled irritants in the smoke. He said it was possible the findings were not clinically important.

But in an editorial in the same issue discussing the report, Dr. Louis Vachon, a noted marijuana researcher from Boston University School of Medicine, said the phenomenon requires a careful look. The question, he said, is the biological meaning of the differences that were detected.

"If the changes observed after 10 weeks of smoking were to continue at the same rate, the person who smokes five joints a day would be totally disabled by respiratory insufficiency in a few years," he said. "This obviously has not happened."

Dr. Vachon said a more logical hypothesis might be that lung function would be impaired to some extent and then remain that way or degrade very slowly thereafter.

"Is this the forerunner of severe damage that will emerge years later?" he asked.

In cigarettes made with tobacco, the harmful agent is the smoke. Dr. Vachon said there were few laboratory studies comparing marijuana and tobacco smoke, but adding that the combustion of marijuana leaves more residue than tobacco.

Dr. Vachon said, however, that the effects on the central nervous system of nicotine in tobacco and marijuana's principal active ingredient, known as THC, were very different and lead to different smoking habits.

"The most prevalent pattern of cigarette smoking is once or twice hourly, whereas for marijuana it is once or twice weekly, or at most, perhaps daily. With marijuana, the much longer interval between exposures to smoke is the main factor that reduces the damage that can be done to the protective mechanisms of the lung."

Twelve Year Effort Ends With Unprecedented Flavor In Low Tar Smoke.

New 'Enriched Flavor' discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT achieves taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

The greatest challenge to cigarette makers in the last two decades has been how to make a low tar cigarette that wasn't "low" in taste.

It seemed impossible. Until today. After twelve long, hard, often frustrating years, Philip Morris has developed the way to do it. The cigarette is called MERIT. It delivers only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Yet MERIT delivers astounding flavor.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

Low Tar, Good Taste: Filters Fall Short

Like most everyone else, we tried to design special "low tar, good taste" filters. Special filters that would somehow allow taste through but not tar.

Like others, we experienced the same general kind of results: the lower the tar, the lower the taste.

So for flavor, we concentrated on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end.

And decided if we wanted more flavor to come through, we'd just have to find a way to start with more.

Smoke Cracked:

'Enriched Flavor' Discovery

So we began an exhaustive research program in cigarette smoke analysis and the ingredients that actually comprise cigarette taste.

By using a very sensitive instrument called an Analytical Fractometer, we were able to "crack" cigarette smoke down into its various ingredients.

We found there are over 2000 separate ingredients in smoke.

Each was isolated and analyzed, one by one.

What we discovered was startling: there are ingredients in tobacco—"key" basic flavor units—that deliver taste way out-of-proportion to tar.

Breakthrough.

By fortifying tobacco with these natural flavor essentials, we're now able to pack flavor—extraordinary flavor—into a cigarette without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.' It's extra flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved. Smokers of filter cigarettes like yourself, all tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly, too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette. MERIT.

Incredible smoking pleasure at only 9 mg. tar.

Concordes Inaugurate Supersonic Flights to Bahrain and Rio

By RICHARD WITKIN
Special to The New York Times

BAHRAIN, Jan. 21 — Two Concorde jets, taking off simultaneously from London and Paris, today inaugurated the world's first scheduled supersonic passenger services.

The slender-bodied, 1,350-mile-an-hour planes streaked from London to this Middle East island in 4 hours and 30 minutes and from Paris to Rio de Janeiro in 5 hours and 45 minutes, not counting a refueling stop in Dakar, Senegal.

The twin inaugural flights, a historic high point in a two-nation venture that began more than 13 years ago and has so far cost $3 billion.

There is still serious concern in the aviation world over whether airlines operating Concordes can avoid painful losses, especially if the admittedly noisy plane is denied access to New York.

On the flight here, what made the greatest impact on passengers was the realization of the high speeds being reached. This realization came not so much from the Machmeter on the cabin wall that constantly showed the current speed in Mach number (Mach 1 is the speed of sound) but from the captain's announcements of the incredibly fast passage of successive pieces of geography.

At one moment the island of Crete was just off to the left. Twenty-two minutes later, Cyprus was floating by, and nine minutes after that the captain announced that the plane was passing over Lebanon's northern border with Syria. The aircraft was over Lebanon just one minute and a half. Four Arab countries—Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia—had given permission for the plane to stay supersonic, despite the sonic boom, in special corridors.

Mrs. David Clifton, traveling with her husband, a director of a major corporation in England, said: "I didn't know I was flying supersonic until I saw the Greek islands literally slipping by. I usually look at Greece from a plane and say I'd like to visit that little cove, and that other one just beyond it. We were going too fast today for that."

Of the 99 passengers on the plane, only 28 were paying customers. The rest were officials, including the Duke of Kent, and other guests, and a handful of employees of the airline or the manufacturers, chosen by lot or special contests. By contrast, 90 of the hundred passengers on the French plane were fare-paying customers.

Some veteran travelers, including a few reporters, insisted that the extra speed did not make up for the fairly close quarters, especially the narrow aisle space. The decor was average—white walls and ceilings, seat patterns in magenta and purple, flight attendants in new uniforms—blue blouses, brighter blue skirts, and blue-and-white scarves.

The food was of a quality befitting patrons whose normal charge will be first class fare plus 15 percent. But the grilled steak was overdone—no one was asked whether it should be rare, medium or well done.

The only technical aberration had to do with the Machmeter in the rear cabin. When the front passenger Machmeter properly read Mach 1.99, the meter in the rear cabin read Mach 1.72. Evidently all the instruments worked fine in the cockpit.

Until the plane reached the Adriatic Sea just south of Venice, the captain of the British Airways Concorde, Capt. Norman Todd, had to keep his craft throttled back below the speed of sound, which is 660 miles an hour altitude. This was so as not to blast the populace below with its sonic boom.

But the plane still cut het flight time on the 3,515-mile run from the subsonics scheduled 6 hours 30 minutes to 4 hours 10 minutes. This included a 10-minute extra waiting for take-off so it could start its roll at the precise moment the Air France sister plane did.

The time savings by Air France on its much longer run to Rio, a distance of 5,927 miles, was even more impressive. It cut the flight from the 11 hours and 10 minutes of the subsonic jets to 7 hours and 5 minutes. And this was done despite a refueling stop of one hour and 20 minutes that has to be made at Dakar—a stop the subsonics can skip.

The two airlines had wanted

McGOVERN ASSERTS VIETNAM WANTS TIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (Reuters)—Senator George McGovern, back from trips to Saigon and Hanoi, said today that Vietnamese leaders appeared eager to open peaceful relations with the United States and other countries.

The South Dakota Senator said at a news conference, "All indications are that the leaders are ready today for relations."

Senator McGovern, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on the Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, spent three days in Hanoi and two days in Saigon during a three-week tour that also took him to India, Pakistan and Bangladesh.

He urged that the United States not delay unduly in opening relations with Vietnam, saying the American experience with Cuba showed there was nothing to be gained from continuing to isolate the country.

He suggested, however, that any United States move could await all-Vietnam elections sometime in the next six months.

Senator McGovern said the Vietnamese did not make United States reconstruction aid a condition of establishing relations, although officials had said they took seriously the pledge in the Paris accords to help rebuild the country.

to open supersonic era with regular service to New York, where prospects are deemed brightest for at least breaking even on such costly operations.

But the protests of airport-area communities, their Congressmen and other officials, and environmentalists have delayed a Government decision on allowing the Concordes to open a route anywhere in the United States.

ing supersonic passenger jet service. But the plane was 40 minutes behind schedule, because of a refueling delay and a brief technical failure that forced it to reduce its speed temporarily.

According to the pilot, Comdr. Pierre Chamone, the plane was late in taking off from the refueling stop at Dakar.

Shortly after that take-off, he added, there was a "tiny mechanical fault" that prevented the opening of a secondary air vent in one of the plane's turbines.

As a result, he said, the plane flew at subsonic speeds until the air vent opened again.

DENTAL MATERIALS RECALLED BY F.D.A.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration announced yesterday the recall of 1,600 jars of temporary dental fillings that it says are contaminated with poisonous lead and cadmium.

The materials, called Temp Seal temporary dental filling, was distributed all over the country by Union Broach Company, Long Island City, Queens. It was manufactured by Coltene Ltd., of Switzerland.

The F.D.A. said the jars involved were of 2 1/2-ounce size. It said the filling "contains leachable lead and cadmium, which are toxic when ingested." Leaching means that the metals could be drawn out of the filling and into the mouth of the patient.

The agency also said the recall of 1,000 Light 'N' Heavy melba-flavored yogurt distributed in Connecticut and New Jersey was contaminated with mold.

The F.D.A. said it held 12 8-ounce containers of the yogurt. The recall was announced by Sealers, Inc. of Kraftco-Corporation of Lawrence, N.Y.

Supreme Court Curbs Federal Judges in Cases of Police Complaints

LESLIE OELSNER
The United States Court of Appeals for the third circuit affirmed that ruling.

The Supreme Court majority, however, in an opinion written by William H. Rehnquist, faulted the district court on several counts.

First, it noted that the defendants were high city officials such as Mayor Frank L. Rizzo, rather than the individual policemen who allegedly committed the violations.

The Court said it had "serious doubts that the necessary 'case or controversy' existed between the plaintiffs and the defendants, because what the plaintiffs wanted the courts to protect them from were acts by individual policemen rather than by the defendant-officials."

The implication appeared to be that plaintiffs should have sued the individual policemen—a type of suit that some civil rights groups had told the Supreme Court in opposing the defendants' appeal.

The Supreme Court noted that the district court had based its order on a showing of some 20 incidents and had not found that the incidents reflected any policy of abuse by the department. The Court said that for the plaintiffs to win their case under the Civil Rights Act of 1871—which gives people the right to sue officials who deprive them of their constitutional rights—they would have to show that the defendants were directly responsible.

Finally, the Court brought up the issue of "federalism," which generally limits the power of the Federal courts to intervene in state and local affairs. It said that principles of federalism such as the rule barring Federal court injunctions in all but the most "extraordinary" circumstances applied to cases such as this.

Pennsylvania Joins Plea

A broad array of groups including the American Civil Liberties Union, the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund Inc., the Philadelphia Bar Association, as well as the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, joined the original plaintiffs before the Supreme Court in opposing the defendants' appeal.

Among the many arguments they made was that established approaches to controlling police misconduct would not work and that orders such as the order in this case were thus necessary.

The three dissenters, at least, appeared to agree.

"There must be Federal relief available against persistent denial of Federal constitutional rights even by (or, perhaps I should say, particularly by) constituted authority on the state side," Harry A. Blackmun wrote for the dissenters.

The dissenters particularly disagreed with the majority view that an official had to be "directly" responsible for the civil rights violations on which the lawsuit is based.

"By its very words," the dissent said, the statute involved in the case "reaches not only the acts of an official, but also the acts of subordinates for whom he is responsible."

Today's ruling could perhaps be described as symptomatic of the so-called Burger Court, in that it takes a restrictive rather than an expansive view of the role of the Federal judiciary—unlike the view often followed by the Court in the Warren era.

However, it also shows that voting blocs are not so firm as had been predicted when the Burger court began.

In the majority were three appointees of President Nixon—Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Lewis F. Powell Jr. as well as Justice Rehnquist—but also two members of the Warren court—Potter Stewart and Byron R. White. Two of the three dissenters were Warren Court members—Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr.—but the Justice who wrote the dissent was a Nixon appointee.

The case was Rizzo v. Goode, No. 74-942.

COUNCIL DEFENDING RIGHT-TO-KNOW LAW

HARTFORD, Jan. 21 (UPI)—The Connecticut Freedom of Information Council has urged Gov. Ella T. Grasso to use her "moral influence" or veto power if legislative leaders try to weaken the state's right-to-know law.

The council, in a letter to the Governor, complained about threats by the House Speaker, James Kennedy, and the Senate President Pro Tem, Joseph Fanfano, to take legal action against a provision of the law.

The two Hartford Democrats, as co-chairmen of the Legislative Management Committee, say they might go to court or seek a change in the law following a recent council ruling requiring disclosure of votes at one of their secret meetings.

The committee's vote resulted in the discharge of a State Capital employee accused of accepting a speaking fee from lobbyists interested in pending legislation.

The council chairman, Daniel Kops, a broadcast executive, said that the right to hold proper "executive," or secret, committee meetings was not being questioned, but that the committee's refusal to disclose votes was at issue.

"The legislature cannot be above the law it sets for others in the State," Mr. Kops wrote in separate letters to the two legislative leaders.

New Massachusetts Justice

BOSTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Gov. Michael S. Dukakis swore in Edward F. Hennessey as Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court today. Justice Hennessey, associate justice since 1971 replaces G. Joseph Tauro, who retired Jan. 10.

Bill That Would

on of Its Budget

ER PETERSON
The New York Times

Jan. 21—The Assembly passed legislation, proposed by the City, requiring the approval of a fixed percentage of the budget for school system. After a brief debate, the bill requires the city to spend at least 10 percent of the city's budget for the school system. The bill has been passed by a vote of 53 to 17. The bill is sponsored by Leonard P. Siskel, Democrat of Queens, and is the subject of a hearing by the Education Committee, which is expected to report on the bill in the next few days.

Governor Carey announced yesterday that he would ask for a $22 million appropriation to help pay the rent and carrying charges of elderly and poor families who cannot afford the rising costs of middle-income housing developments that get city and state aid.

Light Snow Grows Into a Storm,
Snarling City and Suburb Roads

By DEIRDRE CARMODY
Commuters stuck in their cars were not cheered by weather forecasts on their radios that there would be up to five inches of snow in the city and probably more in the suburbs.

Snow fell lightly on the metropolitan area during the day yesterday, then—as if it had whimsically been waiting for just the moment—began to pelt down as hundreds of thousands of commuters emerged from their offices for the trek home. Highways that had been clear during the day suddenly became treacherous. Icy spots developed and cars spun around and slid into ditches on the sides of the roads.

Private-Housing Rent Subsidies
Initiated in a New City Program

By JOSEPH P. FRIED
The City Housing Authority announced yesterday that, effective immediately, it would begin receiving applications for rent subsidies to be given to low-income and moderate-income families in privately owned housing.

To qualify for the very small number of subsidy awards—only 1,075 families will be selected—applicants must not only meet certain income requirements, but also they must have a severe housing hardship. This means that they currently must be living in "extremely substandard" or "grossly overcrowded" housing and cannot afford to move, or that they live in physically adequate housing but have an "unusually severe rent hardship."

State Units Have Offices
In Five Foreign Countries

By RONALD SMOTHERS
Special to The New York Times

ALBANY, Jan. 21—New York State maintains an official presence in five foreign countries through offices that develop educational materials, promote tourism and economic development in the state, boost state businesses to potential overseas companies or examine foreign branches of state banks. The foreign outposts have been maintained at a cost to the state of more than $500,000 a year. But some officials argue that all, with the exception of the New Delhi office, can be said to generate income that either offsets their costs or provides enough money to the state to make them economically feasible.

Both offices feed information into the department's Trade Opportunities Bulletin, which lists inquiries from foreign companies seeking materials of services that could be provided by the nearly 10,000 state concerns that receive the bulletin. Mr. Newman said both offices advertised in more than 62 foreign publications, cultivated a network of satisfied foreign customers and promoted the state in radio and billboard advertisements. "Exports mean jobs," Mr. Newman said, "and last year we estimate, our activities resulted in $125 million in export sales for state firms."

Massachusetts City Faces
Loss of U.S. Job Programs

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 21 (AP)—The Department of Labor threatened to cancel job programs for this city after ruling that Mayor Wilfred C. Driscoll used federal funds to subsidize his re-election campaign.

Thomas Komarek, assistant regional administrator for the department, ordered the city to reimburse the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act for the salary of a former aide to Mr. Driscoll. Mrs. Ann Horowitz, the aide allegedly worked for the Mayor's campaign while she was on the CETA payroll. "Any further incidents of this type may result in revocation of their subgrantee status," Mr. Komarek said of Fall River's authority over dispensing job funds.

HOUSE UNIT VOTES TO AIR SPY DATA

Panel's Decision to Publish Report on Secret Projects Assailed by Ford Aide

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP) — The House Intelligence committee voted today to publish secret information on United States intelligence operations in its final report. A spokesman for the committee said the committee was breaking an agreement that Mr. Ford would have to approve such disclosures.

The report says intelligence agencies spend $10 billion a year on operations abroad, according to the sources.

The committee rejected 8 to 4 a motion to strike the classified information out of a 340-page draft of the committee's final report.

At the White House, press secretary Ron Neesen said, "Under the agreement the President should have had a chance to review the classified material in the report before it was leaked to the public. The President views with most serious concern the leak of the alleged contents of the report."

But committee members, including its chairman, Otis Pike, Democrat of New York, took the position that no agreement with Mr. Ford could dictate what the committee disclosed in its official report to the House.

Beyond that, Representative Les Aspin, Democrat of Wisconsin, contended that it would "be a terrible, terrible precedent" for the committee not to insist that Congress has as much right as the President to decide what information should be public.

The draft report includes details on a number of secret operations—including information on Italian political funding and aid to groups in Angola that Mr. Ford had tried to keep secret.

The agreement was that the committee could publicly disclose secrets under an agreed procedure but would not disclose any that Mr. Ford had personally declared would hurt national security if made public.

The only way the committee could override such a declaration and release information, it agreed, would be to go to court for a ruling that it could do so.

Meanwhile, the chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee split openly today over the issue of creating a new Congressional panel to oversee the operations of the C.I.A. and other intelligence agencies.

In testimony before the Senate Government Operations committee, Senator Frank Church, Democrat of Idaho, committee chairman, called for creation of a Senate committee that would have funding and investigation powers over the intelligence activities of such agencies as the Agency, The Federal Bureau of Investigation, The National Security Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency.

The committee's vice chairman, John Tower, Republican of Texas, opposed a new oversight panel but added that only one or two other members of the intelligence committee shared his view.

Mr. Church's call for a new committee was endorsed by the Senate majority leader, Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana, who called past Congressional oversight "inexcusable lax" and added that he would make passage of legislation creating an oversight committee a top priority of the current session of Congress.

Mr. Mansfield noted that he had first introduced legislation to oversee the C.I.A. nearly 20 years ago but that it had been opposed by then the agency's director, Allen Dulles. The agency defeated his attempt because it "had the heirkrahs in their pocket," Mr. Mansfield said.

Senator Howard Baker Jr., Republican of Tennessee, another member of the intelligence committee, endorsed creation of a new panel but Mr. Baker objected to two provisions in the legislation outlined by Mr. Church. One would provide the oversight committee with prior notification of covert operations. The other would reserve for the Senate the right to declassify Administration secrets.

4 News Agencies of India Agree to Plan for Merger

NEW DELHI, Jan. 21 (Reuters)—India's four news agencies have reached agreement in principle on government plans for them to merge into a single national news agency, reportedly within six months.

The board of the Press Trust of India, largest of the four, decided yesterday to offer its good offices to draw up and carry out the proposed merger on a voluntary basis in consultation with the three others.

They are the United News of India and the smaller Hind language Hindustan Samachar and Samachar Bharati agencies, which had earlier supported a voluntary merger.

The Press Trust of India's board said in a resolution adopted yesterday that the new agency "should be totally free from any control for interference by Government or its agencies."

Columbia Broadcasting system and, to a lesser extent, after joining the American Broadcasting Company.

He worked for CBS from 1955 to 1961 and then for ABC until 1965.

The substance and accuracy of Mr. Jaffe's testimony before Senate investigators was confirmed by authoritative sources, one of whom indicated also that the intelligence panel had obtained the names of a number of American newsmen who had entered into a similar relationship with the F.B.I. and Central Intelligence Agency in the past.

Clarence M. Kelley, the F.B.I. director, told a group of reporters at a breakfast meeting today that although the bureau, to his knowledge, now had no informants posing as representatives of news-gathering organizations, "We've had friendly newspaper people who might, on occasion, help us."

Mr. Jaffe said that he could not place precisely the date on which he was first approached by two F.B.I. agents from the bureau's New York City office about reporting on the Soviet diplomats stationed there, but that he believed it occurred sometime during his tenure as a correspondent for Life magazine between 1952 and 1955.

That arrangement, for which Mr. Jaffe said today he "was never paid a penny," continued after he joined CBS as a reporter at the United Nations in 1955, he said.

Mr. Mickelson, who headed the CBS News Division during part of Mr. Jaffe's employment there, said today that he had had no knowledge of the reporter's relationship with the F.B.I.

Mr. Mickelson recalled, however, that in early 1960, Mr. Jaffe approached his superiors at CBS in New York and told them that he "thought he could get into" the Soviet Union to cover the trial of Francis Gary Powers, the American pilot whose U-2 reconnaissance airplane was shot down over Sverdlovsk the previous year.

Mr. Jaffe, who did cover the Powers trial for CBS, disputed Mr. Mickelson's recollection, saying that it was CBS that had asked him to take the Moscow assignment because of his knowledge of Soviet affairs.

In any event, Mr. Jaffe said, when he arrived in Moscow he was surprised to discover that he alone among the American correspondents covering the Powers trial had been seated on the first floor of the Soviet courtroom near the defendant's dock and given a room on the same floor of the Moscow hotel where Mr. Powers' wife was lodged.

After the trial ended and he returned to the United States to resume his domestic reporting duties, Mr. Jaffe said, he was debriefed by his F.B.I. "control" agents on his experiences in the Soviet Union.

In 1961, Mr. Jaffe said, he left CBS to become the resident Moscow correspondent for ABC News, a post he held for the next four years. During that time, he said, he would be recalled periodically to ABC headquarters in New York and each time, submitted to interviews with F.B.I. agents about conditions in the Soviet Union.

Nicholas Archer, now an ABC vice president in charge of television news and previously network's news assignment manager, said that he, like Mr. Mickelson, had never had any knowledge of Mr. Jaffe's relationship with the F.B.I.

Mr. Jaffe said in the interview today that although he had never knowingly worked for the C.I.A. in this country or abroad, one aspect of his assignment to Moscow and led him to wonder what of his experiences there were underwritten by the States Government and its knowledge.

Before leaving New York, Mr. Jaffe said, he was ABC to open an account in his own name with the network for travel expenses.

When he returned to New York from Moscow, Mr. Jaffe said, he found ABC executives that count still contained $600 of the network's only to be told that the account could find no funds into it.

Mr. Jaffe said, he had not previously received a report on his assignment to Moscow and led him to wonder what of his experiences there were underwritten by the States Government and its knowledge.

Plan to Drill Oil in a Park Creates Dispute in Houston

By JAMES P. STIERRA
Special to The New York Times
HOUSTON, Jan. 20—What would happen if a big oil company announced plans to drill some wildcat oil wells in New York's Central Park?

George R. Brown, owner of Brownco Inc., the company that wants to drill for oil in Houston's Memorial Park.

Root, Inc., the giant Houston-based construction contracting company, Mr. Brown, however, is deeply committed to both the free enterprise system and energy independence.

Mr. Brown's main problem was getting permission to drill. He is now one signature away from obtaining a drilling lease.

To get around that, Mr. Brown got written approval to drill from Hogg estate interests. Most crucial was the signature last July 21 of Mrs. Hogg, Governor Hogg's 93-year-old philanthropist daughter.

Mr. Brown also secured the signatures of several other Hogg relatives: The University of Texas, a trustee of the Hogg estate, also agreed. Allan Shivers, chair-

Complicated Sub Plots
The main plot is fairly simple: Brownco, Inc., a Houston oil company, wants to drill for oil in Houston's Memorial Park, a 1,500-acre oasis of green serenity in a city famous for urban sprawl.

The "Energy Capital of the World," for the sake of its image—afford not to drill for oil in its downtown park?

Mr. Brown's owner certainly does not need the money. He is George R. Brown, the retired founder of Brown &

Problem: Can this 52-foot, $110,000 brand new hook-and-ladder vehicle, made in Wisconsin and driven 1,300 miles to Upper Nyack, fit in the firehouse? Solution: See below.

Too Much of a Good Thing

UPPER NYACK, N.Y.—Their shiny new fire engine arrived just before Thanksgiving and the people of this community of 850 could hardly believe their eyes. Although it was only 52 feet long, the engine seemed to go on forever, and it looked big enough to deal with the infernos of a metropolis.

nose forward into the street. While volunteers shored up the wall, about 300 people went off to a party in honor of the new engine. At 3 in the morning there was a loud rumble, then a great roar. The concrete floor of the firehouse had split down the middle, and the gorge extended onto the sidewalk and right out into the street.

Boycotting Parents Want Funds Used For Private Schools

A group of parents who have kept 11 children out of city schools since September in the belief the education provided there is "harmful and destructive," pressed the Board of Education yesterday to give the money it would have spent on the children to schools of the parents' choice.

CORRECTIONS

Because of a typographical error The New York Times reported on Monday that a 1975 Census Bureau survey had found a median income of $8,935 a year among families living in New York City rental apartments. The correct figure is $8,395, 17 percent higher than reported in the 1970 census.

A Loan For Chile?

By Anthony Lewis

WASHINGTON—The World Bank is before it a proposal to lend $33 million to the Chilean Government for investment in copper-mining facilities.

Some will find it surprising that a respected international institution would want to assist a regime just described by the British Foreign Secretary as "uncivilized" and "brutal."

Inside the World Bank, the proposed loan to Chile is a sensitive subject. Embarrassment is evident in some quarters.

"That is dangerous territory," one ranking figure at the bank said—making loans depend on a regime's political character.

The bank has followed the practice of talking in strictly economic terms. Reports are "sanitized" in the hands of the staff, to keep out politics.

ABROAD AT HOME

World Bank lending to Chile stopped abruptly when Salvador Allende's left-wing Government took office in 1970.

At some point a government plainly could be brutal enough to affect the bank's attitude toward it, whatever the explanation.

But the proposed loan to Chile also sets important questions in terms of the bank's own lending policy.

The report and a supporting memorandum do make reference to economic privation in Chile today.

"Heavy sacrifices are being required of the Chilean people," the report says.

In any event, it would be hard to argue that such a loan to Chile under present circumstances would be likely to reduce income disparities or help the poorest 40 percent.

It is said of judges that they must be blind to what all others can see.

In the World Bank, as elsewhere, democratic momentum has its effect.

But that posed more discipline and controversy than was President Ford's style.

For Palestinian Independence and Sovereignty

By Farouk Kaddoumi

The Security Council's debate on the Middle East is predicated upon certain recognized facts: that peace will not prevail in the Middle East until the Palestinian people realize their national rights.

There is no question that peace in the Middle East is threatened; that previous agreements, based upon an incomplete and inadequate framework and principles, which brought the fourth Middle East war to a temporary cessation, have demonstrated their limitations.

There are three and one-half million Palestinians today; they are the descendants of the Palestinian people who have lived on the soil of Palestine since time immemorial.

Half the Palestinians today live within occupied Palestine; they are governed in accordance with the notorious "defense regulations" that allow the Israeli military authorities to arrest, "administratively detain" and punish any Palestinian suspected of resisting the military occupation.

Throughout the period of British colonial control of Palestine, Palestinians struggled to free Palestine from the dual control of British imperialism and the colonialism of Zionist settlers.

The Downhold Club

By William Safire

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—In his State of the Union and budget messages, President Ford invited the nation to join "the downhold club," a phrase coined by United Press staffers always being tickled to "downhold expenses."

The reaction was predictable: The Ford messages were denounced as "predictable." Worse, the level of Federal spending proposed by the President in his call for a "new realism" is being called "unrealistic" by Democratic realists who expect the budget to rise by 10 percent even before they add their "bold new initiatives."

Mr. Ford knows that his $394 billion battle line will be breached, but had he come in with a spending total of $420 billion, which is where spending will probably end up next fiscal year, the Democratic Congress would have exceeded that by another $20 billion, and inflation really would have been off to the races.

So the President turned Harry Hopkins' election prescription on its head with his own "save and save, tax cut and tax cut, elect and elect." He is determined to capitalize on the most significant new public attitude of our time: that Government spending is a primary cause of inflation, and inflation does more harm than Government spending can cure.

Having made the right decision in terms of economics as well as politics, Mr. Ford's method of presentation tells a good deal about himself and his Presidency. He used a Great Society format to stop the momentum of the Great Society.

A few months ago, some thought was given to a brief, inspirational State of the Union address. Mr. Ford rejected that, holding that other occasions would arise for biennial uplift.

The stylistic choice then was between (a) a philosophical speech, explaining Mr. Ford's understanding of why restraint and diffusion of power were needed now, and (b) the "laundry list" traditional in State of the Union Messages, which would present a kind of pre-convention platform.

The aides recommending the philosophical approach—Alan Greenspan, James Lynn, Robert Goldwin among them—felt that a laundry list should only be used when great new laundry was being offered; in turning away from the usual programs, a speech was called for that presented the rationale for the new realism.

But that posed more discipline and controversy than was President Ford's style. He directed speechwriter Robert Hartmann to cover the waterfront, and received a pre-draft of speech material running about two hours.

mate right; instead, Palestine was to be divided into two states according to a United Nations recommendation of 1947, with an international status for Jerusalem; and, in the course of Zionist attacks on the Palestinians in 1948, Zionists succeeded in driving the Palestinians from their homeland to live in forced exile.

With Israel's attack on the Arab states in 1967, Israel succeeded in occupying the rest of Palestine and in expelling more than 500,000 additional Palestinians.

Throughout the period of their exile and under occupation, Palestinians struggled; they did so to realize their rights guaranteed by international law and the United Nations Charter.

Since 1948, the United Nations has passed innumerable resolutions reaffirming the rights of the Palestinians to return to their homes and property. The implementation of these resolutions has been impeded by the unilateral action of the Zionists who intend to increase and consolidate European Jewish settlements on Arab lands.

Initiatives undertaken by various powers, including those of the United States, which were intended to facilitate the repatriation of the Palestinians and the restoration of their national sovereignty in Palestine, met with the same negative Israeli action.

Despairing of arriving at a just settlement that would enable our people to return and to effect their self-determination and independence, the Palestinians resumed their armed struggle in 1965 and offered a constructive program and a new vision that, when translated into reality, would assure all Palestinians—irrespective of faith—a peaceful and dignified life in Palestine.

As a result of our struggle, the international community once more recognized our right to independence; beginning in 1969, the United Nations recognized the colonized status of the Palestinian people and called upon the international community to assist the Palestinians in attaining their national rights.

This steady international recognition of Palestinian national rights culminated in the just resolution of the General Assembly in November 1974 that called for the independence and sovereignty of the Palestinian people in Palestine; this was followed by another resolution in 1975 that called for a specific timetable for independence and specific mechanisms for the attainment of independence and sovereignty.

Thus the General Assembly affirmed the transitional program of the Palestine Liberation Organization, which rejected all other solutions to the Palestinian problem save that of return to and independence in Palestine.

It is ironic that the United States should assume the role of the principal antagonist to the aspirations of the Palestinian people; its representatives were the first to ascertain the aspirations of the Palestinians for independence and sovereignty in 1919; the Government of the United States voted for the establishment of a Palestinian state in 1947 and in 1948 and annually voted for the right of the Palestinian to return to his home and property in Palestine.

Yet for the past few years, the United States has underwritten Israeli expansion and violation of Palestinian national rights. And in the Security Council it threatens to use its veto to pre-empt a resolution consonant with the requirements of a just peace in the region. In doing so, its isolation is complete.

The overwhelming majority of the international community find it natural to support the Palestinian aspiration for independence and sovereignty in Palestine.

An independent sovereign Palestinian state would immediately solve the continuing problem of Palestinian dispersion, would relieve the oppression that the Palestinian suffers under the military occupation of Israel, and thus would enable the Palestinian people to lead an independent, dignified, productive and peaceful life. More than this, it would contribute to the establishment of permanent peace, which has eluded the Middle East for over 28 years.

Farouk Kaddoumi is head of the Palestine Liberation Organization's political department and chairman of its delegation to the United Nations.

"Stop" Art

A poster punches ideas and information at you. Short, straight jabs of words and pictures stop you and hit you where you live—and you remember the message.

"Images of an Era: the American Poster 1945-75" is an exhibition of more than 200 of the most memorable posters produced in America over the past several decades. It opened last November at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and will be seen in several other major American cities this year before going to Europe, Overseas, it will show Europeans that U.S. graphic designers have captured the world champion poster-making title since World War II.

The show is underwritten by Mobil and organized by the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution.

"Images of an Era" is actually more than a show. It is a pictorial replay of America's major social concerns and fighting style over the last 30 years. In our turbulent postwar period, poster-makers went to the wall to inveigh against war, fight for a cleaned-up environment, urge racial equality, proselytize for a parade of political hopefuls.

They plastered America's fences and buildings, subways, buses, and every blank surface they could find with posters advertising rock concerts (some of the most striking works in the show), student protests, ecology lectures—not to mention a variety of commercial messages from soup to soda pop.

Mobil is proud to be associated with this extraordinary exhibit, and particularly proud that the culminating posters in the show are 13 we commissioned in 1975 from some of America's most gifted artists: William Bailey, James Brooks, Christo, D'Arcangelo, Lichtenstein, Nivola, Robert Andrew Parker, Rauschenberg, Rosenquist, Ed Ruscha, Raymond Saunders, Ben Schonzeit, Velox Ward.

Produced as a Bicentennial commemoration and titled "America: the third century," these works demonstrate the vivid imagination and liveliness of American graphics. Like the show itself, they have been recognized by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. They are, in effect, official Bicentennial posters.

We invite you to see "Images of an Era" if it comes to your city or a city near you. It's a knockout.

Pope Denies View Is Outdated

Defending his stand against abortion and his recent condemnation of extramarital sex, Pope Paul VI described yesterday as "indecorous and sacrilegious" a recent invasion of Milan's cathedral by 300 feminists.

"Why this unlikely and deplorable demonstration by screaming people? It is incredible," the Pope said, addressing 3,000 persons at his weekly audience. Calling for free abortion, women attempted last Saturday to sack the cathedral, which was Pope Paul's seat when he was Archbishop of Milan.

URGENT STEMMING OF INQUIRY LEAKS

id State Increase Penalty or Grand-Jury Disclosures

By TOM GOLDSTEIN

Increasing the penalties for unlawful grand-jury leaks was commended yesterday by a legislator and a lawyer at a hearing of the State Commission of Investigation.

Justice Irwin Brownstein of the State Supreme Court in Brooklyn, State Senator Roy M. Rodman and William Leibovitz, a lawyer, urged that harsher penalties be imposed on prosecutors and public officials who prematurely disclosed information about grand-jury investigations.

Inquiry on a Dannemora Suicide Calls Guard Action Inexcusable

By LINDA GREENHOUSE

ALBANY, Jan. 21—The State Commission of Correction, in an investigation made public today, concluded that an inmate who hanged himself three months ago at the Clinton State Correctional Facility in Dannemora had tried unsuccessfully to kill himself moments earlier and had been left without supervision even after he told guards that he would try to kill himself again.

Such handling of the prisoner, Wilfredo Sostre, was "inexcusable," the commission report said. The report recommended a number of preventive policies to the State Department of Correctional Services, including constant supervision for inmates who have recently threatened or attempted suicide.

Brownstein appeared before a grand jury in connection with an inquiry by Maurice H. Nadjari, the special state prosecutor in charge of the investigation, into the Brooklyn judiciary.

AT MURDER SCENE But Testimony at Carson's Trial Is Conflicting

By DENA KLEIMAN

A witness who testified yesterday that all six defendants at the murder trial of Robert C. (Sonny) Carson had been present the night a 34-year-old Brooklyn man was fatally shot gave conflicting versions of what he had seen.

Characterizing the testimony as "confusing," defense attorneys questioned the witness, John Brown, about his account of the events that had led to the fatal shooting of Philip Williams and the attempted murder of Henry A. Manley.

Switzerland Lifts Its Ban On Sale of Arms to Spain

Special to The New York Times

GENEVA, Jan. 21—The Swiss Government announced today the lifting of the ban it imposed last April on the sale of arms to Spain.

The ban was decreed because of spreading disorders in Spain as underground opposition to the Franco regime intensified.

In a reply to parliamentary questions, the Government said today it had noted a considerable improvement in the situation in Spain.

District Units to Press School Board

By LEONARD BUDER

A campaign that could lead to efforts to force the removal of the seven members of the central Board of Education has been started by the organization that represents most of the city's decentralized community school boards.

Philip Kaplan, president of the School Boards Association, said yesterday that representatives of the group planned to visit each of the Borough Presidents and Mayor Beane's office, to press the city board members to become "more responsive" to the concerns of the local school districts.

The local board spokesman was also sharply critical of Mr. Anker's action on Tuesday superseding two Manhattan school boards—those for Districts 3 and 6—for not complying with his earlier orders that they shorten their school days.

Plan for $2 Million International Fair Of Boutiques and Restaurants Debated

By PAUL GOLDBERGER

Would a so-called "International Fair," a $2-million arcade of boutiques, eating places and theaters built around a plaza save or ruin the congested neighborhood around Bloomingdale?

An appraisal to combine adjacent lots 20 and 21, owned by the project's developer in return for his helping to pay for the city to get a free amnesty? These are the questions being debated now in the blocks surrounding the site at 59th Street and Second Avenue, and they will form the basis for discussion at the Board of Estimate.

'Seven Beauties,' Wertmuller's Finest

By VINCENT CANBY

"Seven Beauties," the fifth Lina Wertmuller film to be released in this country in less than two years, is the finest, most ambitious work yet made by this gifted Italian director whose films appear to be inspired by irreconcilable contradictions.

"Seven Beauties," which opened yesterday at the Cinema II, is a handbook for survival, a farce, a drama of almost shattering impact. It's a disorderly epic, seductively beautiful to look at, as often harrowing as it is boisterously funny, though it has a solid substructure of common sense and precisely observed details from life.

It's the story of Pasqualino Fratuse (Giancarlo Giannini), a natty, small-time, completely self-absorbed Neapolitan dandy who had some notoriety shortly before World War II as "the monster of Naples." Pasqualino, to defend his sister's honor, had murdered her pimp, then chopped up the body and mailed the pieces to different parts of Italy. Pasqualino is a character whom Brecht might have found fascinating. He is a survivor, possessed of what someone calls that "thirst for life" that outruns ideas and ideals.

Miss Wertmuller's screenplay opens after the collapse of the Italian front when Pasqualino has deserted from the Italian army while being shipped through Germany to the Russian front. Picked up by the Germans, he is sent to a concentration camp where, to stay alive, he sets out to seduce the camp's ferocious female commandant—an uproariously funny and thoroughly doomed campaign. Counterpointing this story are flashbacks that tell a parallel story of that earlier time in Naples when Pasqualino, had his murder trial, and sacrificed honor to stay alive.

Summarized in this fashion, "Seven Beauties" (which is Pasqualino's nickname in Naples) sounds more schematic than the eccentric, surprising, and compassionate film that Miss Wertmuller has actually made.

Pasqualino's companion, an Italian socialist, is outraged at Italy's complicity in the Nazi terror. Pasqualino shrugs and it's Pasqualino who lives to return home, not the socialist.

Miss Wertmuller states political positions bluntly. When Pasqualino is convicted of murder, he is sentenced to 12 years in prison, while a political prisoner receives 26 years "for thinking." The female commandant (played by Shirley Stoler, the American actress) allows Pasqualino to make love to her, then sneers, "In Paris, a Greek made love to a goose... to eat to live. That's why you'll survive... and our dreams for a master race [are] unattainable..."

As are all of Miss Wertmuller's films, "Seven Beauties" is about choices, and the conditions that govern them. Though she states positions bluntly, she doesn't make films that are easily categorized for popular consumption as either optimistic or pessimistic. Pasqualino's survival is neither a triumph nor a tragedy, but simply the expression (as I take it) of the life force, whatever that may be.

The director is deeply committed to political action, which can alleviate intolerable social conditions, but her films are distinguished by an awareness that political action is always dependent upon the unpredictable human response. It's her awareness and her appreciation of this mystery that give her films their particular life.

They are also full of vitality and are marvellously well acted. Giancarlo Giannini, superb as Pasqualino, receives especially effective support from Miss Stoler, Ferdinando Rey (as a fellow concentration camp prisoner), and Elena Fiore (as Pasqualino's elder sister, the would-be whore).

"Seven Beauties" deserves to be the first big hit of this new year.

Self-Indulgence Is Triumphant in '92 in the Shade'

By RICHARD EDER

Thomas Guane's "92 in the Shade" is subtle and lively. Parts are over-the-top, but if anything, in that they compel our pleasure almost to the point of distraction. By the time it ends, we have unmistakably been entertained. Perhaps we have been mildly poisoned, as well.

Mr. McGuane, a novelist turned screen writer and director, has set his movie in the charter-boat, fishing-flaude world of Key West, Fla. The blues and greens, the heat, the willing paint hint at corruption. Under the film's humor and momentum there is also corruption. But the whole thing is so finely tuned, so edgily balanced that it's hard to say whether corruption is merely the theme or shades over into the viewpoint as well.

The film, which opened yesterday at showcase theaters, uses a disarrayed and trifling child of plenty as its protagonist. Peter Fonda plays him as human desert, stoned with expensive flowers. He is self-indulgent and cold, disconnected and rich. His name is Tom Skelton; his grandfather owns the bank, the police force and a vast supply of earthiness. His father has retreated semi-permanently into a kind of outdoor crib—shades of "Baby Doll"—set out on the front porch. Tom takes candlelit bits with a bra-less schoolteacher and suddenly decides that he is going to find something to do.

What he does is move his cloudy self-indulgence into a rough and real world, that of the boat captains who take tourists out fishing. They are hard, self-made men, at once competitive and clannish, and with no liking for a rich kid who tries to break into their business.

It is in its portrayal of these men that the movie moves from languid wit into something stronger. There is Nicholas Dance, a violent, primitive man with a rough code of honor which consists, as he puts it, in maintaining his "credence." There is Carter, cleverer and quicker to see the threat to his struggling lifestyle posed by Tom. Dance and Carter, in an act of half-playful, half-serious hazing, steal Tom's first client. Tom's detachment dissolves totally. He's never reacted to anything; now he overreacts viciously by burning Dance's boat.

Dance, played with marvelous strength and a kind of baffled sweetness by Warren Oates, tries to puzzle out the rights and wrongs. Egged on by Carter—another splendid performance by Harry Dean Stanton—he decides that even though he likes Tom and has wronged him, the reprisal is out of all measure.

To maintain his "credence," he warns Tom: he will shoot him if he continues to work as a fishing guide. Tom ignores him. He gets money from his grandfather and orders a boat built that is far grander than anything Carter or Dance have been able to buy. He takes out a tourist—sent to him by Carter, who wants to see him dead—and there is a showdown.

The showdown is more ironic than tragic. Quite coldly, in fact, this pseudo flower-child has used the old weapons of money and position and gratification to get his way. It is an ending with uneasy implications. Tom has been portrayed with charm as well as irony and there is an overwhelming desire not to see him shot dead. But it is, fundamentally, who is the aggressor and the bully.

As in "Rancho DeLuxe," which he wrote, although he didn't direct it, Mr. McGuane captures the speech and style of young people who are funny and charming and empty and mean. "Ninety-two" maintains some of the disquieting ambiguity of viewpoint that weakened "Rancho." But it's a more satisfying picture.

The authenticity of Carter and Dance sets off the emptiness at the center of Tom, and gives us a focus to sense why he takes a line by Tom's invalid father who warns his son that for Dance, the showdown is a matter of honor. "It's a matter of who gets to fish and who gets to cut bait," says Tom, shrugging the notion off. "You and your generation have a depraved sense of language," says his father retort.

GOING OUT Guide

DIFFERENT TUNE The British are coming—tonight 7:30 to Madison Square Garden as the Royal Marines and the Black Watch perform regimental tribute to the bicentennial and hands-cross-the-sea friendship in a program of pomp, pagantry, massed bands, pipes, runs and dances. One highlight will be a "Yankee Doodle 'Dandy" number, while another will feature soldiers in uniforms of the Revolutionary period. The Royal Marines will demonstrate their famed precision marching and the Watch's Highland dancers will go into their spectacular sword dancing.

There are five performances: tomorrow at 10:30 M.; Saturday at 2 and 8 M.; and Sunday at 1:30 P.M. Downtown office workers' residents, near Trinity Church at Broadway and all Street, can catch an early sampling of the music tonight, when about 50 fibers from the 150-member band perform at a service honoring soldiers killed in a Revolution, piping a procession to the soldiers' monument in the churchyard.

P.P. FLIP E. Y. Yip Hargrove, one of the front-rank comedians of the Broadway-lywood orbit, is being billed in a mini-musical using five performances starting tonight and ending at the All Souls Lowsheip Hall at Lexington Avenue and 80th Street. The group has staged previous salutes to Noel Coward, ink Loesser, Dorothy Fields and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

INSIDE OUT Peter Schwed, author of the new book "God Bless Pawnbrokers," seems singularly well-equipped to speak on the subject of "Diamonds and Pawnbrokers," today's free lecture in the Hour-with-the-Author series at 5:15 P.M. at the Mercantile Library Association, 17 East 47th Street. While Mr. Schwed happens to be chairman of the editorial board of the magazine, he is also an authority on the whys, hows and wherefores of the pawnbroking industry, having worked for 10 years for the Provident Loan Society during the Depression. Seating is limited, so phone reservations are suggested. The number is 755-6710.

HOW TO "The Art of Cartooning", a new book by the Cartoonists Guild, will receive a literal demonstration today from noon to 3 P.M., when a group of prominent members demonstrate their work for spectators and customers at the Doubleday Book Shop on Fifth Avenue between 56th and 57th Streets. The cartoonists are George Booth, Dana Fradon, Mort Gerberg, Sam Gross, Marvin Tannenber, Gahan Wilson and Bill Woodman. They appear in such publications as the New Yorker, Ladies Home Journal, Playboy and the New York Times.

The cartoonists will quickly sketch intricate drawings based on audience suggestions and discuss their work. Naturally there will be a session of book autographing, this time with a small illustrative cartoon alongside each signature.

HERE AND NOW The St. Paul Chamber Orchestra performs tonight at 7:30 in the New York Public Library auditorium at Lincoln Center, music by Aaron Copland, Paul Fetter, Henry Cowell and Eric Stokes. Tickets to the New and Newer Music series are $2.50, available only in advance from the Alice Tully Hall box office.

Pender, Army-Bred Star, Is Eager to Serve as Coach

By GORDON S. WHITE

Mel Pender wants the Army. Mel Pender, winner of an Olympic gold medal and probably the quickest starter off the mark in dash history, Pender has been the United States Military Academy's acting track coach since the death of Carl Crowell last Sept. Pender has no competition for the job as Crowell's permanent replacement and West Point officials have advertised that the job is available. It is expected that Army will decide sometime in March.

Pender is outspoken in his gratitude toward the Army. The short sprinter, who didn't get involved in track until he was 25 years old and in his seventh year as an Army enlisted man, said, "I always wanted to be somebody. The Army gave me the chance. If I hadn't been in the Army, I'd maybe be in the new 'cause I'm so ambitious."

Pender recalled having lived with his family in a shack with a tin roof near Atlanta and attended Lyndon High School. "We never ran track," he said. "I played football and it kept me in high school. We had no track team 'cause we weren't really interested there and had no good equipment. What we had was leftovers from other schools. "The school was concrete block with pot-bellied stoves and pipes going out the windows. There was red clay for landscape and no decent running place. It wasn't till I was in the Army anyone ever got me into running."

Pender enlisted after high school in 1953, served 11 years as an enlisted man and is now a captain. He will retire from the Army in June, hoping he stays at West Point as the civilian track coach.

Pender said he was ridiculed in the Army because he is black. "I just learned to live with it," he said. "I've been called names. I've been called 'boy,' but I took it. Still, the Army gave me the chance."

"If I had a high school chance to run, I'd have been in the 1950 Olympics. But I didn't even know about the Olympics then. It was when I was stationed in Okinawa in 1961, playing football with the 503d Airborne, that I volunteered to run in a track meet against the Japanese. I won the 100-meter and I didn't even know how far 100 meters was. "I applied for the Army track team in 1963 and was sent to Fort Bragg, [N.C.] with the 82d Division. Got two hours off a day to practice track."

Pender was a winner right from the beginning. He doesn't know why, but he had ability I didn't know about—that ability to quick start."

He was born on Halloween 38 years ago. "Maybe I'm so quick off the mark 'cause I'm a warlock," he commented.

After five years as an assistant under Crowell at West Point, Pender said: "I'd like to stay. I like it. I can't say anything bad about West Point. I've been treated fair. And they don't assign just anyone there—only the best."

"Now I really, really want the job. I would like it 'cause I know the job. I think the Cadets here respect me 'cause of what I've accomplished. I still train with 'em."

This winter Army's track team is undefeated. Last week the Cadets beat Manhattan for the first time in five years in an indoor meet.

9-2 Wardlaw Wins Dash Through Snow at Big A

days ago in the Rockaway here. It was the first race since October for the 3-year-old son of Iron Ruler and the time for the six furlongs, 1:09 3/5, indicated that not all the good horses had gone South for the winter.

And if it seemed incongruous that a horse good enough for the Kentucky Derby would be sent out in a snowstorm, it was not easy to believe that two Derby horses could have come down the stretch head and head, as difficult to separate as PU 2d add at the race tracks Donner and Blitzen.

Yet it is not beyond the realm of possibility that both Wardlaw and Iron Bit wind up at Churchill Downs. Wardlaw, who won a minor stakes last month at Keyport and was the 9-2 second choice yesterday, now head for Arkansas, where Vance will point the son of Decidedly for the Arkansas Derby in April.

Iron Bit, who was second in three major stakes races as a 2-year-old, did not run a bad race on a track listed as "fast" (the Big A's maintenance workers have kept the strip in fine shape) but getting slower as the snow got deeper.

Iron Bit took the lead at the start and held off various gray shapes down the backstretch during the fifth race. Dave Johnson, the track announcer, was restricted to this call: "And something is third on the outside!"

But at the top of the stretch, Wardlaw, who had been forced wide round the turn in the Rockaway, moved between horses and settled down for a long drive against the favorite. The two leaders, leaving tracks in the snow for the rest of the six-horse field to follow, were timed in 1:22 3/5.

Forest Stream, a 6-1 shot, was third, three lengths behind Iron Bit, who had "no excuses," according to Cordeiro. "We just got outrun," the rider said.

Wardlaw returned $11, $3.20 and $2.20, Iron Bit paid $2.60 and $2.20, and Forest Stream paid $2.20.

Taft, a Surprise, Is Playoff-Bound

By ARTHUR PINCUS

Taft's first step in defending its Public Schools Athletic League basketball title is almost complete. The Blue Devils seem certain of capturing the Bronx Division II crown and gaining a spot in the playoffs. With all five of last season's starters having been graduated, Taft's success is surprising. The Blue Devils have lost their first league game in two years, but they have won nine games and lost one in the league and lead second-place Stevenson by two games.

"Our aim was to make the playoffs," says Coach Don Adams, "having started over again, what we've done is remarkable."

Taft has succeeded despite a constantly shifting roster, some internal problems and a chronic lack of height. With the playoffs three weeks away, Adams says, "We're still trying to find our right combination."

Whatever the combination may be, Vernon Moore is the most important part of it. The junior backcourt man saw considerable action last season, and his coolness was the deciding factor in the victory against Lafayette in the final.

As a sophomore, Moore tried to disrupt his man on defense with ceaseless chatter. Now, Adams says, "he is moving so quickly I can't tell what he's doing."

What he does best is guide the team on the floor. While the Blue Devils were troubled by problems in class and with one another, Moore helped steady them.

All of a sudden things were having difficulty with are working out," says Adams. If Adams and his crew work things out just a little better, prospects for a third straight title will grow brighter.

N.H.L. Records Attendance Dip

By ARTHUR PINCUS

MONTREAL (UPI)—The National Hockey League report that attendance for the first two months of the 1975-76 season was lower than the year, but gate receipts were higher.

"I've got a lot of nice kids," says Coach Steve Scalet. "It's been an enjoyable season." Joe Frantz and Sid Johnson are the co-captains and senior leaders. Tim Hornsby, a 6-5 junior, is the leading scorer with 16 points a game.

In Manhattan, Hughes is nearing its third division title in four seasons. One victory in the final two games will wrap it up.

In the other divisions, Kennedy and Clinton are battling for the lead in Bronx I. Canaris's steamroller seems unstoppable in Brooklyn I. Second-place South Shore has lost once to Canaris. Lafayette is unbeaten in Brooklyn II, with Lincoln Park Hamilton and Sheephead Bay battling for second.

In Queens, Long Island City is well in front of Cleveland and Bryant. Jackson is unbeaten in Queens II, with Beach Channel second in Queens III. Bayville, Van Buren, Springfield Gardens and Hillcrest are battling for the two playoff spots.

Brands is second in Manhattan and Fort Richmond and McKee are leading on Staten Island. The playoffs begin Feb. 12, with the final scheduled at St. John's University in Queens on March 6.

The best car in the world for under $3500.*

IT'S NOT TOYOTA. IT'S NOT DATSUN. IT'S NOT VEGA. IT'S NOT PINTO. IT'S NOT FIAT. IT'S NOT HONDA.

We set our standards high. So did the car experts of Road and Track. In naming the 10 best cars in the world, they begin with a subject dear to our hearts. And we quote: "We considered value for money carefully. With what has happened to prices the past three years this is more critical than ever in America; no longer can so many of us buy on a whim and trade every two or three years. The annual Detroit model-change madness is dying a well-deserved death.

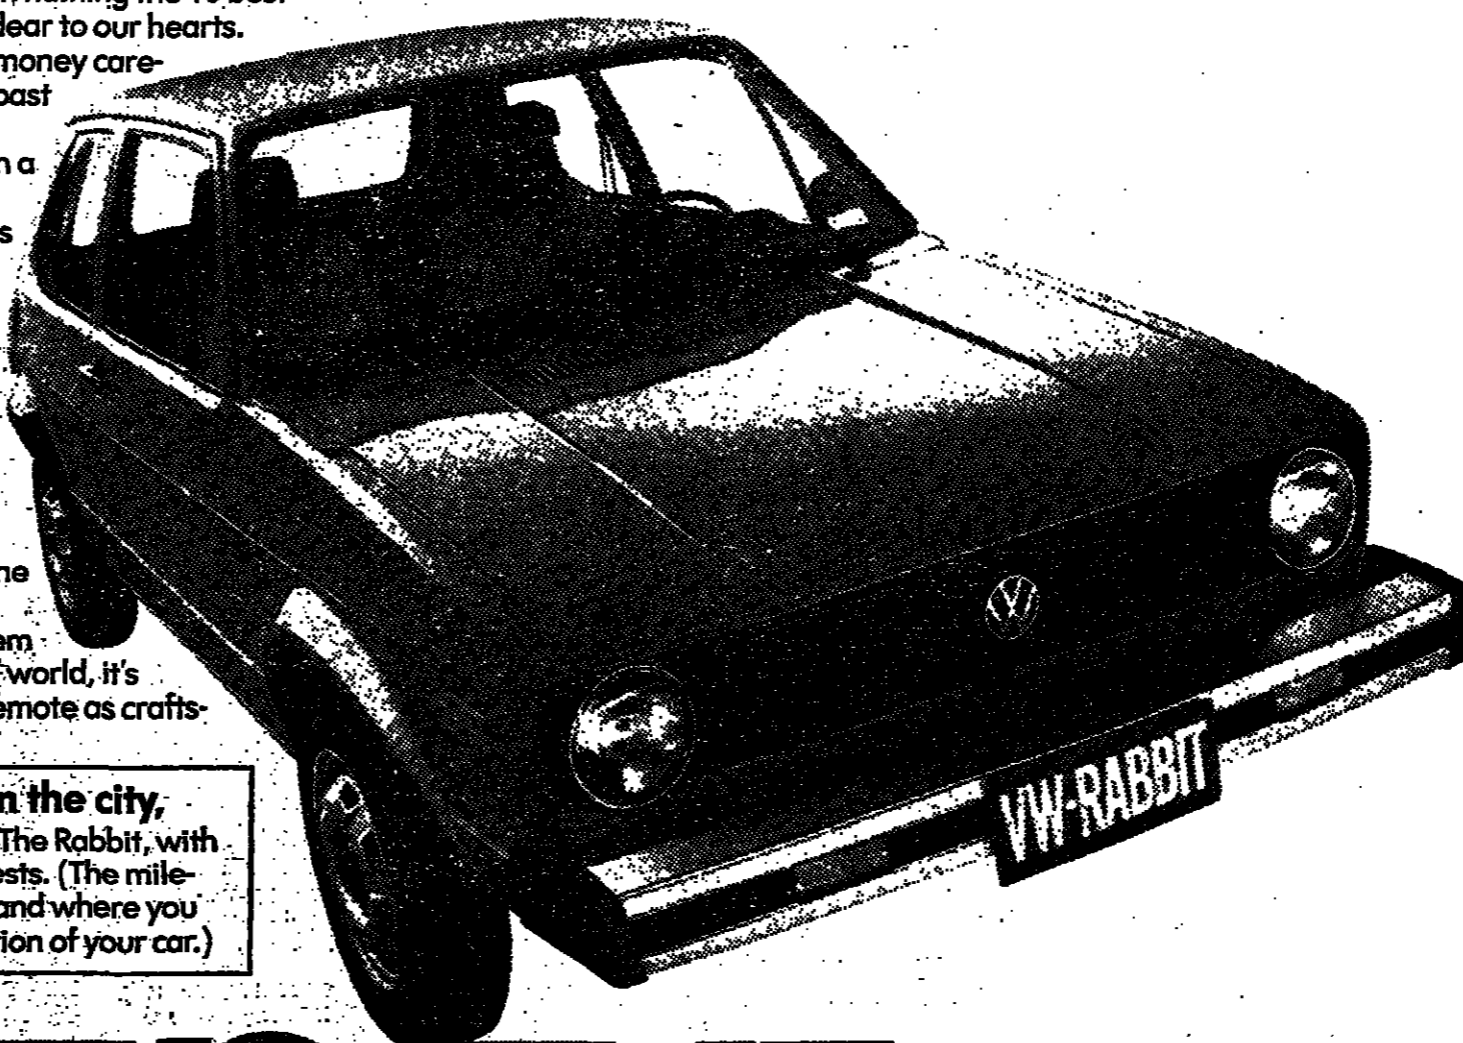

The Volkswagen Rabbit was picked to be the best car in the world for under $3500 for the right reasons.

Handling, acceleration, ride, comfort, space, luggage capacity, brakes, durability, reliability—all these entered into the selection.

We at Volkswagen are proud to take our place next to Mercedes-Benz and the other fine cars chosen "The Best."

In this fast-moving, discountable, "move 'em off the lot and worry about the service later" world, it's nice to know that something as seemingly remote as craftsmanship can still be appreciated.

39 mpg on the highway, 25 in the city, is another reason the Rabbit was picked. The Rabbit, with stick shift, got that mileage in 1976 EPA tests. (The mileage you get can vary, depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment, and the condition of your car.)

Knicks Beat Blazers for 4th in Row N.B.A. Adds Reserves to Star Teams

(Reprinted from yesterday's late edition.) By SAM GOLDAPER The Knicks' shooting slackened at times last night and they made some costly turnovers, but Red Holzman, their coach, was flawless in his moves from the bench. Holzman utilized his players wisely and they responded with key baskets and defensive moves in a 107-104 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers before 17,209 at Madison Square Garden. It was the Knicks' fourth straight victory and their 14th triumph in the last 18 games as they closed in on the .500 mark with a 22-23 win-loss record. Holzman shuffled John Gianelli, Neal Walk, Phil Jackson and Butch Beard into the game at crucial stages and each made outstanding contributions. About the only thing Holzman was unable to figure out was how to shut off the 33-year-old Steve Jones, who had played on six American Basketball Association teams before he signed as a free agent with the Trail Blazers before the season started. Jones, playing as a substitute for 23 minutes, scored 23 points. He got most of them when it appeared the Knicks would run away with the game. Before he missed at the start of the fourth quarter, the 6-foot-5-inch Jones had hit on eight straight baskets. He also made seven of eight free throws. Holzman's juggling came at various stages of the game. In the third period, when Bill Walton and Sidney Wicks had moved Portland ahead, 65-59, Holzman switched Gianelli to the defensive forward and matched him with Wicks. He moved Hayward to the center on Walton. The move slowed the Trail Blazer offense.

Stocks Close Moderately Off; Bond Market Gains Solidly

Corporate Sector Posts Best Rise

By JOHN H. ALLAN
The credit markets, which have been muddling along for the last week seeking to find a sense of direction, posted a fairly solid advance yesterday. Fixed-income investors, a group that is always sensitive to inflation, apparently were reassured by the news that the Consumer Price Index showed a smaller increase in December than in November and completed 1975 with the smallest rise since 1972.

Will Gold Stocks Regain Luster?

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN

On Tuesday, while 315 issues on the New York Stock Exchange ranging from Air Products to Woolworth were posting their best prices of 1977-78, only one stock sank to its low for that period. It was Rosario Resources, a producer of silver and gold. The price action of Rosario, an excellent performer until it topped out in mid-1977, illustrates a fundamental truth on Wall Street, namely that yesterday's heroes can become today's disappointments.

In terms of group action, while the general market has staged a spectacular advance this year, gold stocks rank among the major disappointments.

In a sense, golds were illustrating the other side of the coin for a buoyant market. Gold Stocks moved up briskly in 1973, when ASA Ltd. and Homestake Mining nearly tripled in price to rank as the Big Boy's best performers, and they kept going up during part of 1974. Most other stocks were tumbling in price while the golds were shining.

ASA, a closed-end investment company whose portfolio is dominated by South African mining issues, and Homestake, the largest producer of gold in the United States, moved up a bit in price yesterday. But this occurred only after both stocks had sold on Tuesday within a fraction of their 1975-76 lows.

"I see no interest at all here in gold stocks," a securities salesman said yesterday. "People just forgot about them."

It was a far different story two years ago when a popular pastime for many adherents of gold was to attend seminars and listen happily as speakers spoke glowingly of higher prices for both the bullion and securities.

As inflation and fears of further inflation stalked the land, gold stocks seemed to be transformed from a concept to a religion for some investors, who identified themselves willingly as "gold bugs." One Wall Street analyst was so enamored with the movement that he went uptown to Brooks Brothers and ordered for his clients several dozen ties with a motif of tiny bags of gold.

The popularity of gold issues reflected the rising price of the bullion, which sold as high as $185 an ounce on the London market before the end of 1974—partly on the unrealistic expectation that United States citizens would stage a gold rush in early 1975 after laws were changed to permit ownership of the bullion.

Last fall, when the price kept dropping, some observers on Wall Street took this to mean that deflationary forces had replaced inflation as a prime market determinant. This view was reinforced by the worldwide recession, which reached deep intensity in Europe, traditionally an important source of gold purchases by individuals.

Earlier this week, the price of gold fell below $125 an ounce in London to reach its lowest level in two years. An important depressant on the plan of the International Monetary Fund to auction 25 million ounces over a span of four years.

Despite the recent decline, gold retains some staunch adherents, many of them willing to take a long-range view. To them, gold represents "a true store of value."

A roundtable discussion in a recent issue of The Wall Street Transcript includes a favorable comment on gold-mining shares by Van Eck, president of International Investors Inc., a mutual fund whose fortunes have followed the swings in gold.

In 1975, International Investors, which invests mainly in gold shares, wound up ranking 486th, or next-to-last place, in a tally of mutual fund performance for that year.

Taking a longer perspective, Mr. Van Eck noted: "During the last seven years, our fund has gone up an average of 28 percent a year, an average annual rate of return, compared to zero on the Standard & Poor's 425-stock index."

"It's had more risk, but an optimal amount would have consisted of 34 percent in gold mining shares of our fund and 66 percent in the S & P 425 and would have given a maximum rate of return with a minimum of risk."

For his part, Richard A. Holman, publisher of The Wall Street Transcript, observed yesterday in an interview: "I don't know what's going to happen to the prices of gold, but we're publishing a continual cross-section of what people are saying. Nobody has a monopoly on wisdom."

Mr. Holman, in a further comment on gold, said: "Back in the early 1970's there was an area that no major bank of brokerage firm was interested in."

What took place subsequently—a big rise in the price of gold bullion and gold mining stocks—is history. It seems to bear out the private remark of a brokerage-house research chief that "sometimes the best place to look for under-valued situations is in stock groups that nobody in Wall Street is following."

"As for gold, should inflation become a dominant market force in the future, the group may rise again."

U.S. FELONY ACTION ON HAMMER PUT OFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff agreed yesterday to postpone a planned felony indictment against Arthur Hammer, the industrialist.

Meanwhile, a Federal judge was ordered to reconsider accepting a guilty plea from Mr. Hammer, chief executive officer of the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, on Federal campaign law violations. Under the unusual order from three Federal appeals court judges, United States District Court Judge William B. Jones must put Mr. Hammer on the stand to reaffirm a guilty plea first entered on Oct. 1, 1975.

The judge stopped short of ordering Judge Jones to accept a reaffirmed guilty plea from Mr. Hammer.

Mr. Hammer's lawyer, Louis Nizer, told the appeals court during a hearing that despite a ruling by Judge Jones, the 77-year-old Mr. Hammer never intended to repudiate his guilty

AMEX PRICES DIP; O-T-C SHOWS RISE

Market-Value Index Posts a Drop of 0.07 to 92.93

Prices on the American Stock Exchange finished slightly lower yesterday, while those in the over-the-counter market closed higher.

Analysts attributed some of the selling in part to profit taking and to the intensification of the civil war in Lebanon.

The Amex market-value index fell 0.07 to 92.93 as declining stock prices led advances by 345 to 336. The price of an average share closed unchanged.

In the counter market, the NASDAQ industrial index rose 0.26 to 89.99, while the composite index gained 0.05 to 84.95.

A total of 501 issues rose, while 366 declined. Volume rose to 3.59 million shares from 3.27 million yesterday.

On the Amex, Glenmere Distillers Class B stock rose 1/8 to 9. The company reported that its second-quarter profits increased to 62 cents a share in the year-earlier period.

Avemco added 5/8 to 3 after announcing that it had a net of 18 cents a share in the fourth quarter, compared with a loss of 41 cents a share in the same period the year before.

These developments were offset to some degree by the Labor Department report that the consumer price index last month moved up 0.5 percent and for the year as a whole showed a rise of 7 percent.

The situation in Lebanon and the currency problems in Italy resulted in some nervous selling during the first hour but also prompted some bargain hunting by those who had not participated in the recent rally.

The substantial rebound was impressive but I suspect that we will see a somewhat more choppy performance in the period immediately ahead.

Commenting on the turnaround, Newton Zinder, president at E. F. Hutton, declared: "The market, which has been in a dream world of its own this month, found that it could no longer ignore events in the outside world."

omitted the 50 cent dividend on the $2 preferred stock and also determined that the company did not have sufficient "available income" to make the June 1 and Dec. 1, 1976, interest payments on its 6 1/2 percent subordinated debentures.

It marked the fifth consecutive quarter that the dividend had been passed on the preferred stock and the second year that earnings failed to cover the interest on the debentures.

American Airlines reported it had incurred a net loss of approximately $2 million in the fourth quarter of 1975 and for the full year had a net loss of $21 million on the basis of preliminary accounting estimates.

Last summer, Albert V. Casey, president of the big carrier, had said he expected a 1975 loss of $35 million to $40 million.

Fourth-Quarter Figures

In the fourth quarter of 1974, American had reported a net loss of $7.4 million; for all 1974 it had operated at a profit of $20.4 million.

The smaller-than-estimated deficit figures reflected changes in accounting estimates for pension costs for its 35,000 employees and depreciation expenses, as well as additional traffic the airline garnered last month when United Airlines was closed down 16 days by a strike.

While American re-compensed United by $11 million under the industry's mutual-aid pact, it still was a net gainer of revenues as a result of United's strike.

In issuing the 1975 earnings estimate yesterday, American said that last month it had changed its forecast for the fourth quarter of 1975—the estimated useful lives of its fleet of 121 Boeing 727s from 12 to 16 years and that it also had reduced the residual values of the equipment from 15 percent to 10 percent.

As a result, the company said, the net loss for the year and for the fourth quarter was reduced by $11.1 million.

BANKERS TRUST SUED IN CLASS ACTION HERE

A class action lawsuit has been filed in Federal District Court here charging the Bankers Trust Company and its parent, the Bankers Trust New York Corporation, numerous officers and Ernst & Ernst's accounting firm, with presenting a "falsely inflated and optimistic picture" of the bank since about 1973.

The suit also charges that the defendants engaged in a scheme to "conceal various significant material facts" relating to the operation of the bank. The plaintiffs are Michael and Deborah Tanzer, who say they bought stock of Bankers Trust last February.

A Bankers Trust spokesman said the company had not as yet been served and therefore declined to comment. A spokesman for Ernst & Ernst said the firm and accordingly did not have any immediate comment.

Burns Warns of Harm to Banks If Congress Subpoenas Records

By ROBERT M. SMITH. Special to The New York Times. WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, charged today that the nation's banking system "could be damaged if Congress subpoenaed bank examiners' reports on the Chase Manhattan and First National City Banks."

"When we cast doubt on the integrity of our individual banks," Dr. Burns told a House Banking Subcommittee, "we take a risk—a great risk that could endanger a large part of our financial system."

Both banks were on the Comptroller's list of "problem banks" last year, but Comptroller James E. Smith has defended their soundness.

Rates Fell 0.3% in '75 on Mortgages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UPI)—Average interest rates on home mortgages dropped 0.3 percent in 1975 to reverse the upward trend of recent years, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said today.

But home prices increased more than $3,800 on a national average, the F.H.L.B. said. The F.H.L.B. survey covers homes with "conventional" financing by savings associations, banks and mortgage bankers. It does not include homes with mortgages backed by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration.

Concerns on 'Problem' List Federal Reserve a Year Ago

...would do damage to all of these institutions. Although bank holding companies report to their shareholders on such items as actual loan losses and reserves for loan losses, other matters such as liquidity, capital adequacy and asset quality are seldom discussed publicly—and then only in broad terms. The deteriorating condition of many banks in the last year or two has not received widespread attention, partly because bank profits in many cases have held steady or even improved and partly because critical analyses by the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Reserve have not been made public. Bankers and regulators have declared repeatedly in recent weeks that the nation's banking system is sound and well-managed. With the economy recovering slowly, most banking experts say that all but the weakest institutions will undoubtedly recover from their difficulties of past months.

However, recent disclosures of widespread problems in the American banking system have already spurred investigations in Congress, and many experts say that a drive to remove some of the secrecy from the regulatory process is likely to gain momentum. Because of their sensitivity, documents such as the Federal Reserve "problem" list until recently have been kept confidential even from Congressional scrutiny. In addition, there is a criminal statute that prohibits disclosure of information from bank examiners' reports, although it exempts those who disclose such material to Congress. Sources said the Federal Reserve report prepared a year ago did not suggest any danger of bank failure, but raised questions about difficulties in bank operations that Government regulatory officials authorities felt needed to be watched very closely.

Bankers have said it is not unusual in time of serious business recession—such as the period discussed in the Federal Reserve report—for banks to have large potential loan losses. Indeed, many banks have reported such losses because of problems suffered by companies that have borrowed from them. Bankers also say the size of their assets, the size of the American economy and in some instances their rising earnings tend to reduce the impact of potential loan losses.

Nevertheless, information such as that contained in the Federal Reserve report has not previously been made public, and it emerges at a time when there are growing demands for disclosure in many areas of American society. It also indicates that serious problems existed at the time the banks listed were examined. The Federal Reserve "problem" report of a year ago was described by its authors in the report itself as "the first comprehensive report of a continuing series that will serve to advise the Board of such problem holding companies. Similar reports will be periodically submitted regarding financially vulnerable bank holding companies."

The report suggested that two "fundamental destabilizing influences" had affected bank holding companies in 1974. The first, it said, was record high interest expenses "incurred by virtually all financial operations through funding asset growth with debt instruments without commensurate growth in equity."

Quality of Assets The second influence, the report said, "has been and continues to be the marked deterioration in asset quality stemming, in some instances, from less than satisfactory credit judgment and administration, but more from the general economic conditions." It continued: "These factors have impacted adversely on the quality of existing loan portfolios, and because many banks and their non-bank affiliates have no future commitments to lend to segments of the growing public sector, giving rise to asset weaknesses, significant problems can be expected to continue in 1975."

The information in the Federal Reserve report came from a variety of sources, the authors said, including "a list of problem bank holding companies" submitted to the staff of each of the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks. Other sources of information according to the report, were bank examination reports, published financial data, rating agency reports, bank holding company investment reports, internal Federal Reserve memoranda and information supplied by each holding company directly either to the Federal Reserve's Washington staff or to the Federal Reserve bank in its region.

Details Included Regarding individual banks on the "problem" list, specific financial information and a narrative about each holding company's condition was included in the report. The report's section on Marine Midland Bank Inc., for example, said: "This holding company is a problem because the banks have experienced deterioration in asset quality as

Nevertheless, information such as that contained in the Federal Reserve report has not previously been made public, and it emerges at a time when there are growing demands for disclosure in many areas of American society. It also indicates that serious problems existed at the time the banks listed were examined.

The Federal Reserve "problem" report of a year ago was described by its authors in the report itself as "the first comprehensive report of a continuing series that will serve to advise the Board of such problem holding companies. Similar reports will be periodically submitted regarding financially vulnerable bank holding companies."

The report suggested that two "fundamental destabilizing influences" had affected bank holding companies in 1974. The first, it said, was record high interest expenses "incurred by virtually all financial operations through funding asset growth with debt instruments without commensurate growth in equity."

Quality of Assets The second influence, the report said, "has been and continues to be the marked deterioration in asset quality stemming, in some instances, from less than satisfactory credit judgment and administration, but more from the general economic conditions." It continued: "These factors have impacted adversely on the quality of existing loan portfolios, and because many banks and their non-bank affiliates have no future commitments to lend to segments of the growing public sector, giving rise to asset weaknesses, significant problems can be expected to continue in 1975."

The information in the Federal Reserve report came from a variety of sources, the authors said, including "a list of problem bank holding companies" submitted to the staff of each of the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks. Other sources of information according to the report, were bank examination reports, published financial data, rating agency reports, bank holding company investment reports, internal Federal Reserve memoranda and information supplied by each holding company directly either to the Federal Reserve's Washington staff or to the Federal Reserve bank in its region.

Some of the bank holding companies in the "more serious" category of the Federal Reserve's "problem" list.

Same System of Rating Banks Used by Fed and Comptroller

The Federal Reserve System and the Comptroller of the Currency employ an identical system of rating banks, using an intricate code that consists of two digits and two letters. The highest possible code rating for a bank would be IAS/1. The lowest would be 4DF/4.

The first digit rates the bank's capital position in several ways. It compares it with volume of risk assets, with marginal and inferior quality assets and with deposits. It then compares all those evaluations with the strength of the bank's management. The result is a single digit, ranging from 1 to 4, with 1 being the highest rating.

Capital, by definition, includes the money that shareholders have put into the bank, retained earnings, the bank's reserves for loan losses and security losses and a variety of long-term debt whose repayment is subordinated to the repayment of other debt. Assets consist largely of loans the bank has made, since they represent money owed to the bank. Other assets include investments that the bank has—municipal securities and Government notes, for instance—and the bank's physical property such as real estate.

The first letter in the code reflects the quality of the bank's assets, on a scale of A to D, with A being the best and D the worst. The next letter indicates the rating of management, with S representing satisfactory, F fair and P poor. The final digit is the bank's over-all or composite rating, on a scale of 1 through 4, with 1 being the most favorable.

Earnings decline; and are undercapitalized." The report went on: "The ability of Marine Midland to infuse needed capital to its banks is questionable, the liquidity of its banks is criticized, and the exposure to the parent company arising from inadequate commercial paper back-up lines is of concern."

The report also said that Marine Midland Bank-New York, the holding company's lead bank, was "currently being examined by the Federal Reserve Bank." It continued: Marine Midland Bank-New York, on the prior examination date in early 1973, and preliminary results suggest: that the bank has suffered serious deterioration in asset quality.

Over-all, the report said, "First Pennsylvania Corporation is an unsatisfactory concern due to asset quality problems in the two largest subsidiaries, First Pennsylvania Bank... and Associated Mortgage Company."

Richard S. Thornton, First Pennsylvania's chief financial officer, when told yesterday afternoon of the critical remarks in the Federal Reserve report, had no immediate comment. "The current examination identifies approximately $100 million in classified loans to REIT's real estate investment trusts which compares with no such items on the previous examination date," the report said.

"Over-all, the report said, "First Pennsylvania Corporation is an unsatisfactory concern due to asset quality problems in the two largest subsidiaries, First Pennsylvania Bank... and Associated Mortgage Company."

'Problem' List a Surprise For Many Bank Officers

Many banking officers expressed surprise yesterday when informed that their company had been listed a year ago on a Federal Reserve tabulation of "problem" banks. Comment ranged from forthright acknowledgment of the various bank problems to mild indignation that their company might be listed.

Efforts to reach a senior officer of every bank holding company on the list elicited the general comment that the publication of such a list would "do no good" but, at the same time, turned up several examples of a change in management or ownership of the list. "This isn't going to help anything," said J. Terrence Murray, an officer of both the Industrial National Bank of Providence, R. I. and the Industrial National Corporation, which was on the list. Mr. Murray said the company was merged into the Citizens and Southern Bank of Boston, and noted that 1975 earnings would be "substantially better" than the "poor earnings" of 1974.

Special Efforts Exerted Joseph Steffan, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the Miami National Bank, whose holding company, the Data Lease Financial Corporation, was on the list, said, the bank had been exerting special efforts.

"We've got a turnaround situation operating and we're trying to bring it about," he said. "We'd hate to see our efforts to clean up a bank go down the tube because of not having the facts presented properly in a very widely read paper." Mr. Steffan, formerly chief administrative officer of the Security National Bank of Long Island when it was merged into the Chemical Bank, said he had been "recommended" for his present post to the First National Bank by the Comptroller of the Currency. First National City has a large loan outstanding with Data Lease.

M. F. Parker, president of the Community National Bank and of the Pacific Bancorporation of Bakersfield, Calif., said the bank was on the list at that time because of "loan problems" and that the holding company was listed at present because of short-term debt.

Leaks Are Disclosed He decried "the leaks of confidential information" "simply compound the continuing effort of the financial houses to correct their problems" but added, "I am pleased to report that the problems are solved."

Several banking officers voiced either no knowledge of their inclusion on the list or surprise that their company was included.

Edward A. Jessor Jr., chairman of United Jersey Bank of Princeton, holding company for the Peoples Trust Company of New Jersey, reported a nearly 10 percent rise in holding company profits and said "the fact that the Federal Reserve Board classified us as a problem holding company comes as a surprise."

Hugh Flaherty, vice president of the First Union Corporation of Charlotte, N.C., holding company for the First Union National Bank, said, "We institution and we have no reason to believe that we have at no time been led to believe that we were a problem should be on the list."

Hold List Never Seen In Chattanooga, Tenn., J. E. Whitaker, chairman and president of Hamilton Bankshares Inc., holding company for the Hamilton National Bank, remarked, "I'm not telling you anything about the status of million) will require special attention by senior management." A spokesman for First Wisconsin said the company was aware of the Fed's list. He added that the bank holding company would be reported to day on its earnings for the fourth quarter and the full year of 1974. "These figures will reflect the corporation's performance," the spokesman said.

the holding company). I never saw such a list. I came back to the company in March." Reminded that his name was listed in directories as chairman of the executive committee, he said, "It was an honorary title."

In Los Angeles, Bernard G. LeBeau, executive vice president of both the Imperial Bank and the Imperial Bancorp, its holding company, said he was surprised by the report. "We have no such knowledge from the Federal Reserve ourselves on any kind of list."

"I'm surprised, shocked," responded J. M. Griffin, general counsel of the First National Corporation of Boston, parent of the giant First National Bank of Boston.

"The difficulty," he said, "is that people get hold of items that are entirely out of context. We can't comment. We don't know anything about the list. We're paying dividends, making profits and selling Fed funds," reserves the bank doesn't need and lends to other banks.

Position Is Explained In Washington, Dennis Dehr, a partner in the law firm of Hogan & Hartson relied on behalf of the Central Banking System of Oakland, Calif., holding company for Central Bank. "Under applicable bank regulatory standards," Mr. Lehr said the holding company "is not a problem holding company nor are its affiliated banks problem banks."

Asked what he meant by "applicable standards," he replied that the holding company's "classified assets" nor loans of doubtful collectibility, "are below the level the regulators would consider a problem."

One of the strongest denials came from A. D. Frazier Jr., assistant to the president of the Citizens and Southern National Bank of Atlanta, which is owned by the Citizens and Southern Holding Company. "We are completely, absolutely and totally surprised by your statement that we're on a list of bank holding companies," he said. "We've never been apprised of such a list or that we were in a position to be considered for such a list."

In San Francisco, Edward P. Conley, president of Wells Fargo and Company, holding company for the Wells Fargo Bank, said the company would report record profits in a few days of "well over $50 million" and that "at the present time we are in sound condition."

He added that loan losses in 1975 stood at $41 million, double the $21 million a year earlier, but only a small portion of its $7.6 billion total loan portfolio.

In Memphis, William M. Matthews Jr., chairman and president of the Union Planters Corporation, remarked that the problems of the Union Planters National Bank had been "well publicized" and that management was "taking actions we believe will clear the way for Union Planters to play a prominent role in the recovery of the economy of Memphis."

He maintained, however, that "publication of such a list fails to reflect the fact that those identified have been actively engaged in the solving of their problems."

In Oklahoma City, J. W. McLean, chairman of the Liberty National Bank, owned by the Liberty National Corporation, said that the had "no indication from the Federal Reserve that it was on such a list, remarking, "Certainly our 1975 bank examination would not account for it."

Lithium Use in 'Maude,' Medical Issue

By LES BROWN

The next two episodes of "Maude," the CBS-TV Monday night situation comedy, could create a stir in medical circles for contributing to the popular promotion of the drug lithium carbonate.

According to advance publicity for the shows, the character portrayed by Bea Arthur, becomes afflicted with manic-depressive symptoms and is successfully treated by a psychiatrist who prescribes lithium.

While the drug itself is not controversial and is widely acknowledged in medicine to be of value in treating manic-depressive illness specifically, the promotion of lithium as a wonder drug by some doctors and by such lay enthusiasts as Joshua Logan, the Broadway producer, has made many medical experts uneasy.

Question of Seriousness Some specialists who have challenged the use of lithium for common depression or other psychiatric problems other than manic-depressive illness and improperly supervised use of it can cause kidney damage and that an overdose could be fatal.

In light of that, they have expressed concern that the subject is being dealt with on television in the unserious atmosphere of a situation comedy, rather than in a news or public affairs forum where the possible dangers can be discussed. Dr. Samuel Gershon of New York University's School of Medicine, who has done extensive research with lithium, said that even if the program, in good faith, tried to portray the situation in a clinical manner, the danger is that the audience may see only the symptoms and identify them with their own symptoms of those of friends.

"There could result from it a massive outpouring of demand, a wave of expectation of cure, a creation of false hope," Dr. Gershon said. "I have no serious reservations about lithium when used properly, but manic-depression is not a common disease, and that's what it should be used for."

Norman Lear, producer of the series, who was reached by telephone in Hollywood, said the "Maude" episodes make it clear that the drug is not to be used by everyone and that it is not to take the place of psychiatric treatment for those who can be helped by it.

"The problem has been in the immediate periphery of my own life, and I have personally seen the results with lithium," Mr. Lear said. This led him to read about it and develop the two-part episode for "Maude," he added.

Mr. Lear noted that the "Maude" series frequently deals with health themes "because they are close to people's lives." He said that for the lithium programs he had brought in consultants from the medical field in order to deal with the subject responsibly.

"Proud of the 2 Shows" He identified the consultants as Dr. Nathan Kline, a psychiatrist who is one of the leading advocates of lithium, and a representative of the National Institute of Mental Health.

"From Dr. Kline we learned how the drug worked, and from the institute how to deal with it in the programs," Mr. Lear said, adding "I'm very proud of the two shows."

The first of the two episodes will be aired on Monday. One medical expert who was not apprehensive about the subject occurring in a situation comedy context was Dr. Donald F.F. Klein of the Hillside Medical Center of Long Island Jewish Hospital.

"The whole problem of public education in medicine is a serious one, and this could be an effective way to make people aware of manic-depressive illness and what can be done for it," Dr. Klein said.

"I have no prior objection to their dealing with the lithium question. In fact, I think it's a good idea. If done sensibly, it might be very good," he said.

MOTHER WARNED IN CULT SEIZURE

Told Not to Talk to Her Son, Member of Moon Church

By JAMES FERON Special to The New York Times TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 21—In a court session marked by applause and a scuffle, Village Justice Ralph Betman today warned the mother of a 19-year-old member of the Unification Church not to talk to her son until the disposition of criminal charges against her.

The mother, Fay Goodman, was released with five others in $750 to $3,500 bail on charges of unlawful imprisonment of her son, Mark, who joined the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's church four months ago.

They were alleged to have attempted on Sunday to seize the youth and deliver him to a Mount Pleasant motel where Ted Patrick, a "deprogrammer" of religious cult members, was waiting with an assistant, Sandra Sacks.

Mr. Patrick, who said he had "successfully released 1,200 young men and women from similar mind control," and Mrs. Sacks face misdemeanor charges of the same charge in Mount Pleasant on Friday. They are free on $100 bail.

Justice Bettman, cautioning Mr. Patrick's placard-carrying followers against any demonstration, said he was forwarding the cases to District Attorney Carl A. Vergari of Westchester County for possible grand-jury action.

Mrs. Goodman prepared to return to her son, Milton Mosk, saying, "I still love my son." The local police had arrested them on Sunday after the youth signed a formal complaint.
